Demand Probe of Coolidge Order

Protests in House From Both Wet and Dry Camps—Administration Leaders Say Investigation is Justified.

Washington, May 25.—The storm of dissension over President Coolidge's order pinning federal prohibition badges on state officials, from governors down to village constables, spread to the house today while the senate prepared to launch an investigation to determine its constitutionality.

Although the treasury department declared the order would be confined to California for the present, the demand for its abolishment entirely grew by leaps and bounds with Republicans and Democrats alike protesting against letting it stand as a precedent for all time to come. Wets and drys joined voices in endorsing the King resolution, calling on the senate judiciary committee to immediately investigate the legality of the order.

Wets Offensive.

The wets organized a little offensive of their own to smash down the President's order. Under the direction of Senator Edwards, (D.), of New Jersey, they were preparing a bill to prohibit the use of any state officials in enforcing the national dry law. It may be offered as an amendment to the Goff Enforcement Bill, if not called up for enactment as a separate measure.

In the house, the clamor against the order drew protests from both the wet and dry camps. Representative Douglas, (D.), of Massachusetts, a wet, denounced it as an invasion of state's rights and an attack on personal liberty, while Representative Crisp, (D.), of Georgia, a dry, termed the order an "act of folly."

Opinion in 1819.

Armed with a United States Supreme Court decision, apparently in conflict with the President's order, the senate's constitutional authorities were eager for an investigation. A search of court records by Senator Bruce, (D.), of Maryland, revealed that the nation's highest court handed down a unanimous opinion in 1819, holding that state officials cannot "in any manner control the operations of the constitutional laws enacted by congress."

The decision, written by Chief Justice John Marshall, recognized as one of the greatest legal authorities in all history, was handed down in the McCulloch-Maryland Case, over an act of Maryland in attempting to prevent enforcement of a federal law. Then, the court ruled: "The states have no power by taxation or otherwise, to retard, impede, burden or in any manner control the operations of the constitutional laws enacted by congress to carry into execution the powers vested in the federal government."

The order was attacked from two other sides, too. First, the senate's legal lights contended that the President had no constitutional authority to create new federal positions or to authorize the appointment of anybody under the Volstead Act, wherein congress gave the appointing power specifically to the secretary of the treasury. Second, they argued that no federal officer could hold a state office at the same time, even if the states permitted it.

In support of the latter argument, they cited section 2 of the Act of 1894, reading: "No person who holds an office, the salary or annual compensation attached to which amounts to the sum of $2,500, shall be appointed to any other office to which compensation is attached, unless specifically heretofore or hereafter authorized by law." While this law has generally been interpreted to apply to two federal offices, its phraseology—as above—does not make the specific limitation. The senate's lawyers believe the courts would hold that it prohibited the President from pinning federal badges on any citizen, holding a $2,500 public office, under state, city or county governments.

Inquiry Justified.

The cry for an investigation drew no opposition from administration leaders. Senator Cummins, (R.) of Iowa, chairman of the judiciary committee, in fact, announced that he considered "the publicity given the order and the doubt arising over its legality, made it a very proper subject of investigation."

Senator King, (D.) of Utah, who introduced the resolution of inquiry, announced he would call it up some time during the day. This procedure met the approval of wets and drys. Senator Edge (R.) New Jersey, wet leader said the "important legal question raised should be investigated and settled at once." while Senator McKellar, (D.) of Tennessee, a dry spokesman, declared, "The doubt raised over the legality of the order justifies an immediate inquiry."

GENERAL PERSHING HAS GREATLY IMPROVED

Washington, May 25.—General John J. Pershing has so far recovered his health that he has been discharged from the observation of physicians, it was learned today.

After his recent return from South America, General Pershing reported to the Walter Reed Hospital here for treatment. Illness caused by high blood pressure, and believed both to have largely disappeared, and he has improved greatly in appearance.

The illness has not kept him from making frequent trips to his office or visiting his son in Massachusetts.

Lack of Lights Resulted in Suit

Street Lights Were Not Lighted and Lights Were Missing From Earth Pile When Mrs. Brew Passed and Was Struck by Motorcycle.

A negligence action brought by Mrs. Alice Brew of this city against Jacob Williams and the Hudson Valley Oil Corporation was taken up for trial before Judge Rosch and a jury in the Supreme court Monday afternoon, but was announced as settled at the opening of court this morning. The plaintiff's case was in and one witness for the defense had been sworn when the case was settled.

Mrs. Drew, who resides in the lower portion of the city, seeks damages for injuries sustained in April, 1921, when she was struck by a motorcycle of defendant, Williams, at the corner of Broadway and Delaware avenue where the Hudson Valley Oil Corporation was then installing a gasoline station.

Mrs. Brew claims that she and a companion were coming up Broadway in the early evening and that at the time of the accident it was dark but the street-lights had not yet been lighted. She contends that when she came to the oil station there was a pile of earth across the sidewalk where a concrete walk was being built. She and her friend attempted to walk around the pile of earth. They had just reached the roadway and were proceeding around the obstruction when, she claims, the motorcycle of defendant struck Mrs. Brew. The other woman was not injured. Mrs. Brew was rendered unconscious and sustained injuries about the face, head and other parts of her body. She was taken to the hospital by the ambulance and there treated by Dr. Snyder. Her face is still disfigured by a discoloration where some substance was ground into the wound. One eye is also disfigured by reason of a small scar which prevents her from opening her eye to the full extent.

She claims that at the time there were no lights on the pile of earth where they obstructed the road and walk.

Chris. J. Flanagan and Judge Jenkins appeared for the plaintiff and Van Etten and Cook for the defendant, Williams. Judge William D. Brinnier appeared for the Hudson Valley Oil Corporation.

Several witnesses sworn were unable to give satisfactory testimony, stating that since the affair took place several years ago they had forgotten details.

John A. Fischer A Commissioner

Monday night Mayor Morris Block filed with City Clerk Styles the appointment of former Alderman John A. Fischer of 334 Abeel street as a member of the local civil service commission to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Peter J. Crough.

DRAFTING COMMISSION ADOPTS FRENCH THESIS.

Geneva, May 25.—France scores a victory and the United States gets a rebuff in the report of the Drafting Commission of the League of Nations Disarmament Preparatory Commission, it was learned today.

The Drafting Commission will submit its report to the full commission this afternoon and it is learned that it approves the French thesis that "disarmament is only realizable in proportion to security."

The report ignores the proposal of the United States that the questions of naval and military disarmament be separated.

The report will also recommend a number of questions for the consideration of the technical military subcommittee.

The French thesis has scored almost a complete victory in the Drafting Commission and there are indications that it will find considerable support before the full commission.

CARRIED PENCIL LEAD IN HAND 28 YEARS

Thirty-three years ago Mrs. Walter Smith of New Paltz had the misfortune to run a lead pencil into the palm of her right hand. The point was broken off and remained imbedded in the flesh. After all these years the wound has "set up" and a few days ago it became necessary for Dr. Coddington to operate and remove the lead.

Our Growing Population.

The following births have been filed with the board of health:

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Lucas, 13 West Strand, a daughter, Virginia Katherine.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy J. Jennings, 94½ Downs street, a daughter, Jean Marie.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Gorham, 24 McEntee street, a son, at Kingston City Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Smith 154 Van Buren avenue, a son, Stanley Arthur.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy T. Lasher, 66 South Manor avenue, a daughter, Dorothy Evelyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Crawford G. Williams, 62 Fletcher avenue, a son, Crawford Conrad, Jr.

Resume Battle Over Evolution

Brilliant Array of Counsel Will Again Defend Scopes On Hearing On His Appeal—Second Test of Tennessee's Law Monday.

Washington, May 25.—The "legal battle of the century" over Tennessee's anti-evolution law will be resumed next Monday before Tennessee's State Supreme Court in a second test of the law's constitutionality, it was announced here today by Dr. John R. Neal, of counsel for John Thomas Scopes, convicted school teacher.

Attorneys for Scopes will argue that the conviction of Scopes for teaching his Dayton, Tenn., High School classes that man is a mammal, was a denial of his constitutional guarantees of freedom of religion and liberty of thought. The young teacher will be represented at the hearing on his appeal by the same brilliant array of counsel, including Clarence Darrow and Arthur Garfield Hays, who defended him at Dayton last summer.

The state's law, prohibiting the teaching of any theory of evolution which conflicts with the divine story of creation, will be defended before the court by State Attorney General Frank Thompson, K. T. McCinico, of Nashville and Edward Seay, prominent Nashville Railroad Attorney.

If Scopes's attorneys lose their appeal to Tennessee's high court to have the law declared unconstitutional, they will take an immediate appeal to the United States Supreme Court. Scopes meanwhile having paid his nominal fine, will continue his studies at the University of Chicago, regardless of the outcome in his case.

TENNESSEE PLANTS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Johnson City, Tenn., May 25.—The Tennessee Box Company whose $150,000 plant was totally wrecked by fire will be rebuilt immediately, William H. Loft, president, announced today.

The fire burned all units of the plant except the boiler room, and destroyed nearly a dozen freight cars of the Southern Railway on an adjacent switch.

Officials and insurance company representatives today were conducting a rigid examination into this fire and another which 38 hours earlier wrecked the $200,000 plant of the Tennessee Shale Brick Company, four blocks from the box factory. The operations of a pyromaniac are suspected in both cases.

TWO DIE AS RESULT OF TENEMENT FIRE

New York, May 25.—Two out of three members of a family which figured in heroic rescues during a tenement fire here yesterday are dead today and the third, Mrs. Antonio Bessasa, is not expected to live. Her daughter, Lillian, three years old, died less than twelve hours after the son, Robert, two. They were carried from their blazing apartment by fireman Frederick Reviello who had to make dangerous leaps from window to window to effect each rescue.

SIX EXPERT CRACKSMEN CUT OPEN FOUR SAFES

Newark, N. J., May 25.—A band of six expert crackamen invaded the jewelry refining establishment of Emil Sneider, Inc., here, early today, cut open four safes with acetylene torches, and escaped in an automobile with $7,000 in cash, precious metals and chemicals and several thousand dollars worth of non-negotiable bonds.

Part of the loot was a quantity of silver nitrate valued at $10,000.

The night watchman was bound and gagged.

TWO MEN KILLED WHEN AUTO HITS POLE.

Winchester, Mass., May 25.—Two men were killed when their automobile failed to make the turn around a flashing beacon on the state road at Church street early today, crashed into a pole and turned turtle.

The dead: Thomas McNiff, and a man believed to be Raymond Hayes, both of Boston.

The driver of the car, Harry S. Gunn, also of Boston, was placed under arrest.

In Jail for Assault.

William Woodhall was brought to jail Monday evening to spend one day in jail for each dollar he defaults in paying to liquidate a fine of $50 imposed by Judge Webber of the town of Ulster. Woodhall was found guilty of assault in the third degree. He has been in Ulster county jail before and hails from East Kingston.

Attractive John Street Store.

The store of Berkwith Company, 29 John street, near Fair street, has been newly painted, decorated and refurnished and presents an attractive appearance. It is now being conducted under the management of the Misses Shepard and Kingsfield.

Business Certificate Filed.

William Baichis of Highland, agent of Lloyd, has certified to the Ulster county clerk under the assumed name business law that he is conducting a business on the Milton road under the name and style, "The Sanitone Inn."

Joyce Hawley Said She Took Red Wine Bath

On Stage of the Earl Carroll Theatre After They Got Her Drunk—Says She Was Promised $1,000—Irvin Cobb Left Festivities Early.

New York, May 25.—Irvin S. Cobb, noted writer of fiction, was called as a surprise witness today at the "wine-bath" trial of Earl Carroll, Broadway producer, charged with perjury.

Cobb, who was a guest at the Washington Birthday party on the stage of the Earl Carroll Theater given by Carroll, testified that he left the festivities early, "but was told by Carroll before he left that there was going to be a stunt."

Cobb testified that he saw a bathtub brought to the middle of the stage just before he left.

Cobb did not testify as to whether Miss Joyce Hawley bathed in a tub of champagne as other witnesses have claimed.

"Aren't you one of America's foremost writers?" Cobb was asked under cross-examination.

"In my own opinion, I am," replied Cobb and the court room crowd laughed.

Cobb told his story of the party in a conversational tone. He testified he had imbibed what he thought was "near beer" and mineral water at the party.

The witness was asked by Herbert C. Smyth, defense counsel, if he had any knowledge of champagne.

"Formerly, but not so much of late," answered Cobb.

The witness said that the liquid he saw in the bathtub did not resemble champagne in color.

"Do you drink?" the government counsel asked.

"I only drink whiskey and brandy for medicinal purposes but rarely," the witness replied.

Cobb said he had seen the bath tub filled "at least once." He declared he had seen some bottles heaped up on the stage of an appearance "commonly associated with wine bottles."

Joyce Hawley Testifies.

Following the testimony of Cobb, the name of Joyce Hawley was called. The show girl, alleged principal of the bath tub episode, took the stand.

Speaking in a low voice, Miss Hawley testified she was a chorus girl, seventeen, born in Chicago, and that her real name was Theresa Dougeles.

"Were you ever employed by Earl Carroll?" she was asked.

"Yes, at a hotel fashion show," she answered from under the brim of her peach picture hat.

"Did you go to the party at Earl Carroll's Theatre on February 22?"

"Yes."

Miss Hawley said a "Mr. Juan Tamatelli" invited her to the party.

The witness, a rhapsody in peach and gray, twisted a peach handkerchief in her fingers as she answered questions.

"What happened when you went to the party?" she was asked.

She dropped her voice, and muttered something about a "bathing suit."

"Did you see a bath tub on the stage?"

"Yes."

"What was in it?"

"Red wine."

"Did you have anything to drink?"

"Yes."

"From the bath tub?"

"Several."

"Any more?"

"Some from the table. Earl Carroll gave me some."

"What effect did these drinks have on you?"

"They got me drunk. I was told not to mix my drinks."

Tells About Wine Bath.

Miss Hawley was asked to tell about the bath she took in the tub wheeled out on the stage of the Earl Carroll Theatre.

Her voice dropped even lower as she said:

"I wore a chemise and a pair of shoes. Mr. Carroll held a cloak for me when I came out of the wings. I dropped off what I had on."

"You stepped into the tub?"

"I did."

"Did Carroll say anything?"

"He said 'baby all right.'"

"What happened after you got in the tub?"

"Carroll lifted up his glass and said, 'let's drink to this beautiful creature.' Then he invited a lot of men up on the stage."

"What happened next?"

"I started to cry and Carroll told me to 'keep my head up'."

Miss Hawley said she first had put on a bathing suit before the bathtub stunt but later was told to change to a chemise.

Says $1,000 Was Promised.

The witness said that Carroll had promised her $1,000 for the bathtub episode but had not paid her anything. She said she planned to sue Carroll for the money.

Under cross examination, Miss Hawley was asked if she remembered everything at the party.

"I do remember things, but I was feeling pretty good," she answered in a childish tone.

Miss Hawley testified that Chris Smalle, Carroll's right hand man, offered her $250 if she would testify that there was no champagne nor liquor present at the "soirée" party.

Verdict Against Seides Sustained

Appellate Division of Supreme Court Affirms Judgment Against New Yorker Whose Auto Caused Fatal Accident Near Esopus in 1923.

Another echo of the collision between the Highland-Kingston auto bus and the Buick automobile of Benjamin Seides of New York near Mt. St. Alphonsus at Esopus on September 1, 1923, has just been sounded by the appellate division of the Supreme court. The appellate division has unanimously affirmed the judgment given Mrs. Emily Fenwick against Mr. Seides at a trial term of the Supreme court in this city last October of $4,500. Mrs. Fenwick's husband, John Fenwick, was a passenger on the bus and was so severely injured in the accident that he died.

It was claimed that Mr. Seides attempted to pass the bus from the rear and cut in front of it, striking the front wheel of the bus, causing it to swerve off the road and collide with a tree. Mr. Fenwick, who had boarded the bus but a short distance from the scene of the accident, was so severely injured that he died later the same day at the hospital. Mr Seides claimed that it was a case of mistaken identity and that it was not his automobile which struck the bus. The jury, however, decided otherwise and returned a verdict against Seides.

Seides attempted to show that his car was on the road that day between New York and Phoenicia and he attempted to prove that his car was at Cold Brook about noon while the accident happened some time after 1 o'clock, he claiming that he had passed the scene some time prior to its happening.

Seides was picked out from a line of cars at the Highland ferry a few days later as he was returning home. His car had been observed by the bus driver at Highland and State Troopers stopped him and questioned him at the ferry. There were marks on his car at the time and he told different stories as to how they had come there.

Several other actions either have been tried and verdicts rendered in favor of plaintiffs or are still on the calendar for trial.

Brinnier, Canfield & Elsworth are attorneys for Mrs. Fenwick and F. A. W. Ireland of New York represents Mr. Seides.

PROBING CRASH OF MIDNIGHT EXPRESS.

Boston, May 25.—Investigations by federal, state and railroad authorities were underway today to determine responsibility for the blunder which sent "The Owl" midnight express of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad crashing into a freight train at Mansfield Junction with the loss of one life and a number of injuries to trainmen and passengers.

Railroad officials stated that at best it was a serious error of judgment to permit the freight to shunt its cars around at the cross-over at the time the midnight flyers were due.

SENTENCE MACKINAC DEFENDANTS TUESDAY

Providence, R. I., May 25.—Three defendants on trial in the fatal Steamboat Mackinac explosion disaster case suddenly pleaded nolo contendere today. They were held in heavy bail for sentence Tuesday.

The defendants, who had been on trial for eight days in superior court, were:

Captain George W. McVay of the Mackinac; Chief Engineer John A. Grant, of the steamboat, and George G. Kelley, agent of the steamboat company.

COW ESTABLISHES NEW RECORD IN CANADA

Quebec, May 25.—Marjolaine, the super-cow of Clairvaux, Bagot county, producer last year of 485 pounds of butter, has been ousted from her proud position.

Her place has been usurped by Julia, the property of Dr. Gustave Langelier, director of the experimental farm at Cape Rouge. During the past twelve months Julia has produced 490 pounds of butter and 10,181 pounds of milk—a new Canadian record for three-year-olds.

Russell Scott Back in Chicago

Judge Brothers is Expected to Rule That Another Jury Will Have to Pass on Scott's Sanity—Carries Three Letters Written by Inmates.

Chicago, May 25.—Russell Scott, the man who was snatched from the gallows two hours before the scheduled execution, on a writ ordering a test of his sanity, was back in Chicago today prepared to renew his fight to escape the seemingly inevitable noose.

Scott's first joust with the law will come today when he appears before Acting Chief Justice William V. Brothers of the Criminal Court, who is expected to rule on the legality of the proceedings adopted by the state in declaring Scott sane and ordering his release from the Chester State Insane Asylum so that the sentence of death might be carried out.

Scott was committed to the asylum when a jury found he had become insane after he had been sentenced to hang for the murder of Joseph Maurer, a young drug clerk, during a holdup. He was returned to Chicago yesterday after a commission of state alienists declared he had recovered his sanity.

Judge Brothers is expected to rule that another jury will have to pass on Scott's sanity before the court's sentence can be executed. The slayer's attorney, William Scott Stewart, will be present to argue for a jury trial.

Scott seemed to enjoy his trip from Chester. He arrived at the Union Station in custody of two guards and Dr. Frank Stubblefield of the Chester Asylum. Scott was heavily manacled. He was greeted by his wife, a battery of cameramen and the usual crowd of curious.

Scott smiled as he showed three letters he carried. They were marked "highly important," and were written, Scott said, by "three nuts" who asked him to be sure they were delivered. One was addressed to President Coolidge, another to Clarence Darrow, and a third to a British consul somewhere. All begged urgent help for some imaginary trouble.

"There are many in there who are sane," Scott said, "but there are many others who are not. The horrors I have seen are unspeakable."

"Scott, it is believed, will try to be declared sane, hoping to cheat the gallows on the strength of testimony introduced during the trial of his brother, Robert Scott, who is now awaiting trial for the same crime. The brothers staged the holdup together.

Murphy Couldn't Hold Two Jobs

Richard J. Murphy has filed his resignation as collector of unpaid taxes with Mayor Morris Block who Monday night filed the appointment of Morton Finch of 155 Ten Broeck avenue to fill the vacancy with City Clerk Styles. Mr. Murphy's resignation was due, it is said, to the fact that he is employed by the board of public works.

ROB NEGRO MESSENGER BOY OF $34,000 IN CASH.

New York, May 25.—Six bandits slugged a Negro messenger boy with a lead pipe today in front of the branch of the Hamilton National Bank on 170th street near Grand Concourse, The Bronx, and escaped with $34,000 in cash.

The robbers laid in wait in an automobile parked at the curb when the messenger appeared, leaped from the car, struck him down, seized the satchel and before passersby could interfere, sped away in the machine. Other autoists pursued them, but the trail was soon lost in heavy traffic.

Bank officials, aroused by the commotion, rushed to the sidewalk but the bandits had escaped. They carried the semi-conscious messenger boy into a nearby drug store, where he was given first aid treatment.

CONTINUE NEW YORK TO BUENOS AYRES FLIGHT.

Norfolk, Va., May 25.—The airplane Buenos Ayres, flying from New York to Buenos Ayres, left here this morning for Charleston, South Carolina, on the second lap of its 6,000-mile flight.

The ship was forced down at the Hampton Roads Naval Air Station yesterday by engine trouble. Repairs were completed overnight.

The plane carries Bernardo Duggan, wealthy sportsman, and two companions, Captain Eduardo Olivera, pilot, and Lt. Ernesto Campanelli, mechanic.

Veterans Buy Poppies.

Joyce-Schirick Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of this city, has the honor of being the first purchasers of poppies from Kingston Post this year. Commander Skane of that organization has purchased 100 poppies for members of his organization, which is an indication of the good will and cooperation between the two veterans' organizations.

Kingston Post requests that poppies which are purchased next Saturday on Poppy Day be worn that day and on Monday, May 31st, which is the day when Memorial Day will be observed throughout the country. Every citizen should wear a poppy next Monday in memory of those who gave their lives for our country "On Flanders Fields Where Poppies Grow."

MANY ISSUES BEFORE BAPTIST CONVENTION.

Washington, May 25.—A sharp fight over evolution, modernism and fundamentalism was brewing today as the Northern Baptist convention met for a six-day session.

A clash also centered about the Standard Oil and Rockefeller millions. Fundamentalist delegates charged that modernists have gained the ascendency in church control because of the influence and money of the Rockefeller family.

Some delegates predicted that a split in the church would result if the convention passes a resolution by which a person may become affiliated without baptism. The trouble over this issue arose when the delegates of the Park Avenue Church, New York, were seated at the last convention. Harry Emerson Fosdick agreed to take the pastorate of this church if immersion were dispensed with. Fundamentalists declared that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., insisted upon this stipulation.

In a preliminary session, the Rev. Frank M. Goodchild of New York declared that "the money of John D. Rockefeller, Jr." is the principal force behind the modernist movement. He said the Park Avenue delegates were admitted "because otherwise the church would lose a few millions of dollars." Modernists, he added, "are sycophants of wealth."

JOYCE HAWLEY WILL NOT DANCE AT PITTSFIELD.

Pittsfield, Mass., May 25.—Joyce Hawley, heroine of Earl Carroll's now notorious "bathtub" party, was scheduled to dance for the benefit of the Pittsfield Boat Club on June 2, but she's not going to. Pittsfield is split into two camps over the youthful Joyce.

A furor of criticism descended upon the heads of the club officials after they had announced the coming engagement of Joyce. These officials straightway got together in executive session, and decided to cancel said engagement. That started more trouble from the gayer element.

RECORDS OF CIVILIZED RACE OF 4,000 YEARS AGO FOUND

Hurri, Hitherto Unknown, Sought in Vain to Prevent Rise of Capitalism.

Philadelphia.—Records of an ancient race, whose civilization vied with that of the Hittites and Egyptians as they lived in the shadow of the Tower of Babel, were revealed by speakers before the American Oriental society.

Dr. E. A. Speiser and Prof. Edward Chiera of the University of Pennsylvania made the report after a year of study of a thousand clay tablets uncovered in southern Mesopotamia.

The race, said to have existed 4,000 years ago, heretofore, had been unknown to archeologists. It is known as the Hurri, and the translation of the tablets was expected by the savants attending the meeting to add a new page to ancient history.

"This race," said Doctor Speiser, "had a law against the direct sale of land. However, much as they tried to legislate against the growth of a capitalistic class, the effort failed. Land owners adopted those whose land they wished to obtain. As a result huge land tracts were under one family's jurisdiction. A man had a perfect right to kill his slaves, suffering no consequences whatever."

The tablets, the translation of which has just been completed, cover a period of five generations in one family.

Report of the discovery of two burial tablets, tending to bear out the traditional story of the burial of the bodies of Peter and Paul by Orientals on the Appian Way, near Rome, as related in the apocryphal writings, was made by Prof. Romaine Newbold.

The tablets, he said, bearing Aramaic inscriptions, were found in the Church of San Sebastian, on the Via Appia, about three miles from Rome. They are declared to be the first inscriptions in Aramaic found in Italy, and prove, he believes, there were Orientals in Italy during the First century of the Christian era.

Excavators found the tablets buried 30 feet deep. Translation revealed that they were placed there by an Oriental slave woman named Pecora, who buried her master and mistress there and who erected the tablets as grave markers. The master and mistress of this slave, Professor Newbold believes, were early Christians of the so-called Gnostic sect which tried to gain control of the Roman church.

Professor Newbold said the earliest date on which the burial of Peter and Paul by Orientals is recorded is around 258 A. D. and that the tradition has been accepted by the Roman Catholic church. Latin inscriptions invoking the blessings of Peter and Paul by the earlier Christians of the Third and Fourth centuries have been found frequently. None of them, however, attests to the presence of Orientals.

Secretary of Labor Is Listed as a "Fruitarian"

Secretary of Labor Davis is listed as a "fruitarian," as he lunches on apples, bananas and other fresh fruits, munching them on his way back to his desk after a noontime stroll. In this photograph the secretary was caught in the act of buying his lunch at a corner fruit wagon.

Call Moose, Deer Pests, So Many in North Woods

St. Paul, Minn.—Moose and deer are so thick and so tame that they are a nuisance to his reconnaissance crew, were seen by A. E. Pimpley, state chief of fire suppression, while on a six weeks' stay in the Canadian border country of Minnesota.

"We saw scores of moose and signs of many more," said Mr. Pimpley. "If anyone thinks the king of the forest is failing in Minnesota, he should visit this part of the big woods. The deer were running in groups as high as ten. Both moose and deer were very tame."

The expedition was conducted by the forestry service to obtain data on state-owned timber.

Notes were made on locations for lake shore homesites and tourist camps and the conditions were studied from a fire hazard angle. The crew worked in the territory about twenty-five miles north of Grand Marais.

"Chart your way to SAFETY—" by the Veteran Motorist

WIN $1,000

THIS is the second of a series of five educational advertisements, written by The Veteran Motorist for the Standard Oil Company of New York.

Each advertisement contains a definite question on lubrication, and the Standard Oil Company of New York will award $2,500 in cash to the 79 contestants who write the best answers to the whole series of five questions.

At the bottom of this column you will find Question Two. Question One was published in this paper two weeks ago today. If you missed reading it send your name and address, and The Veteran Motorist will be glad to mail you a copy.

The third advertisement of this series will appear in this newspaper two weeks from today. Watch for it.

Rules of the Contest

1st Award	$1,000
2nd Award	500
3rd Award	250
2 awards of	100 each
4 awards of	25 each
20 awards of	10 each
50 awards of	5 each
79 awards, totalling	$2,500

Any one may compete in this contest, except those connected directly or indirectly with the Standard Oil Company of New York.

The answers to the five questions may be typewritten or written with pen and ink—one side of the paper only—one answer to each question.

No single answer may be longer than 150 words, and each answer must be numbered to match the number of the question. All answers must be written in the English language, and are the property of the Standard Oil Co. of New York.

All five answers should be sent in together and the contestant's name and address should be plainly written on the first page of answers.

No answers will be considered which are received later than Saturday, July 17th, 1926. The awards will be made to those who write the BEST answers to the five questions. That is, to those whose answers, in the opinion of the judges, indicate that they have given most thought to the subjects covered by the questions and have learned most from The Veteran Motorist's advertisements in the Standard Oil Company of New York's advertisements.

Address all answers to "The Veteran Motorist," c/o Standard Oil Company of New York, Room 411, 26 Broadway, New York City.

Question Two

"Of what service has a Lubrication Chart been to you?"

THE motor oil requirements for the various makes of cars vary widely. Cylinder bores vary in size and there are differences in the type of bearings and in the types of oil feed systems. Changes in motor specifications may require a change in oil specifications.

Socony Motor Oil is specifically refined and graded to meet these varying requirements.

From my studies I have also noted a great variety of temperatures in the motor. The explosion generates about 3000° F. The exhaust manifold is about 1000° F. Piston walls get up to 450° F., bearings as high as 250° F., and the underside of the piston head up to 700° F. One can readily picture the need of not only a superior motor oil but also the need of the proper grade.

A SUPERIOR OIL—OF THE PROPER GRADE

A grade of oil that will properly Lubricate one motor may be too thick or too thin for another. If too thick, it acts sluggishly and may not flow to the bearings; power is wasted in internal oil friction. If it is too thin, it will flow too freely and will allow bearing wear; oil will be wasted and the car may be ruined.

Socony Motor Oil and the Socony Chart are your protection. Why trust to luck?

In cooperation with motor car manufacturers, the Socony laboratories, by shop and road tests, have determined and CHARTED the best consistency or grade of oil for each individual motor. A careful check of this data is made annually.

Therefore, I say, Chart Your Way to Safety by following the recommendations of the Socony Chart.

Mrs. Relyea is stopping with her daughter, Mrs. Edwin J. Lefever since the death of her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Barnhart of High Falls and daughter, Mrs. C. L. Lefever, Jr., on the state road called on Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chatterton on Saturday afternoon.

Andrew Coster, who has been seriously ill for the past couple of weeks and under the care of Dr. L. G. Rymph, is slowly improving.

Mrs. Maude Stratton of Kingston who spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Lefever has gone to her home.

Miss Marguerite Mack and brother, Jerome Mack, and boy friend of Pennsylvania, motored here on Saturday to see their grandmother, Mrs. Mine, of Whitesport, and family, for the week end.

Mrs. L. Pangburn, now of Kingston, was in this place on Thursday of last week on business, but called on some of her friends while here.

A number from Fallsburgh and also from Kingston attended the evangelistic services on Sunday morning and also on Saturday evening. A number from Bloomingdale attended the meeting on Monday evening and all those who attended enjoyed them very much.

All the girls and boys who took part on Saturday evening for Mr. Rabb, took their parts well and every one enjoyed the songs and whatever was done.

Summer Heat in Table

To remove a dent from a table of oily substance and heat. Wet a cloth with warm water, not hot, and lay it over the dent. Hold over a hot iron but not near enough to scorch or dry the cloth. Repeat until the dent comes up, then lay over the indented surface a cloth dipped in linseed oil. Finally rub with a mixture of equal parts of turpentine and linseed oil and polish.

Local Architects Form Partnership

Myron S. Teller, architect of this city, announces that Harry Halvorsen will be associated with him in the practice of architecture at 280 Wall street, Ulster County Savings Bank Building, this city, where Mr. Teller has carried on his practice for the past twenty-five years.

Mr. Halvorsen is a graduate of Old Kingston Academy and a graduate in architecture of Syracuse University, and has had ten years of practical experience in offices of recognized standing in the profession, including the state architect's office at Albany, N. Y.

Among the commissions the firm has under way and in course of planning, are:

A winter residence at Inverness, Florida, for Jules Breuchaud, of New York city.

A public garage at Inverness, Florida, for the Inverness Company.

Restoration and additions to Caswell homestead at Malden-on-Hudson of Mrs. Frank Steenken.

Country house of stone at Traver Hollow, town of Olive, Ulster county, for Ross W. Lynn of New York city.

Country house at Burlington, Vermont, for the Hon. Edward W. Frost

Restoration to house for Miss Margaret Jamison, Arbuckle Farms, near New Paltz N. Y.

Church and parsonage for New Paltz Methodist Episcopal Church at New Paltz, N. Y.

Restoration of old Elting homestead at New Paltz, for Howard Elting of Chicago, Ill.

Residence for Miss Lottie W. Webster at Kingston.

Ice plant for Ulster County Ice & Coal Company at Kingston.

Alterations and additions to summer residence and studio at Woodstock, for Eugene Speicher.

Summer residence and studio at Woodstock, for J. H. Striebel.

The four story addition recently completed, as well as the original factory of J. Jacobson & Sons, Kingston, were designed by Mr Teller.

DuBois's Dog Won First Prize

Frank F. Dole, famous as a critic and judge of show dogs, in his report in the New York Herald-Tribune Sunday of the annual dog show of the Queensboro Kennel Club at the Aqueduct race track on Saturday, in commenting on the Fox Terriers said:

"There was a nice lot of fox terriers, and the famous smooth fox terrier bitch, Champion Margaret of Delsmere, owned by J. T. DuBois, of Baldwin, L. I., defeated all the smooths and then went on and won special for the best smooth or wire-haired fox terrier in the show, defeating Champion Tockley Twinkle, who previously had beaten all the wire-haired fox terriers. It was a popular victory of Margaret of Delsmere is one of the best fox terriers, either smooth or wire-haired, now before the public. Fox terriers were judged by Mrs. Ethel Griffin Johnson She handled the class very ably."

There were nearly 700 dogs entered and very few absentees. The attendance was large for an outside show and unusual interest was taken in the judging. Weather conditions were favorable until late in the afternoon, when it grew quite chilly.

The Nassau Daily Review on Monday printed a picture of Champion Margaret of Delsmere in connection with the above news story. The owner of Champion Margaret is John T. DuBois, a native of Kingston and in former years a well known newspaper man in this city. He is now on the staff of the Nassau Daily Review.

High School P-T A Elects Officers

Jay Terry was elected president of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Kingston High School at the meeting held Monday evening in the high school auditorium. Other officers elected were: Harold V. Story, Lester Park, first vice president; Mrs. Robin Stella, second vice president; Miss Marguerite R. Cordes, secretary; and Mrs. Harry S. Jacobs, treasurer.

The speaker of the evening was Principal L. M. van den Berg of the New Paltz Normal School, who gave an interesting address on the youth of today as compared with the youth of yesterday.

The next meeting will be held in September.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION OF NEW PALTZ NORMAL SCHOOL.

Election of officers held by the New Paltz Normal School Alumni Association at the school on Saturday afternoon resulted in the following being chosen: Miss Helen Hasbrouck of New Paltz, president; Will Morrison of Newburgh, first vice president; Miss Mabel Hoag of New Paltz, second vice president; Miss Emily Lindenbut of New Paltz, secretary; and Mrs. Leon Reon Jordan of New Paltz, treasurer. It was announced at the session that the anniversary of the breaking of the ground for the new building also fell on Saturday. Ira B. Minard of Newburgh, retiring president, presided.

At the close of the meeting a social hour was held and tea was served. Miss Le Favre was chairman of the social hour and Mrs. L. H. Van Hoesen, wife of the principal, and members of the faculty, alumni and guests assisted with the tea. An informal dance and reception were held in the Normal gym in the evening.

Crepe Satin Used for Wedding Gown

Court Train and Vaporous Veil of Tulle, Worth's Bridal Outfit.

Once a year Paris speaks with a voice of authority on wedding gowns.

Crepe satin of impeccable quality, draped in the fashion of the day, with court train and a vaporous veil of tulle—such is the traditional bridal gown of the house of Worth, which has probably gowned more brides of the societe mondaine during the past half century than any other establishment of the French capital.

"The appropriate wedding gown for a formal church wedding," said M. Worth, "is one which reflects at once the dignity of the ceremony and its joyousness, and in my opinion there is no fabric so suitable as white crepe satin fashioned with graceful simplicity, cut with long sleeves and moderate decolletage because it is to be worn in church. Panels of rich lace unite the silhouette with the straight upward lines of the cathedral, while the filmy outline of tulle lets filter through the light in the aura.

"The headdress may be in the form of a tiara, and I like, also, a nunlike coif of lace that frames the face in a becoming oval."

If it be a country wedding one may choose a gown on more informal lines or a quaint robe de style; and the American bride who is married in the drawing room in a setting of flowers may dispense with court train and long sleeves, and choose among many materials besides satin. A very supple velvet, so fine it falls as soft as satin, is a splendid choice. Georgette, chiffon and new silks of soft texture are in good taste.

Another Parisian house which creates beautiful costumes for the bride is that of Jeanne Lanvin, and here the theme is often chosen from picturesque period styles. It was this couturiere who introduced silver garniture on bridal gowns. The Lanvin spring collection was terminated on the day of its opening by an impressive robe de mariee of white marocain encrusted with tulle embroidered in white beads. The headdress was a diadem of silver lame and beaded tulle, holding a short veil which barely covered the top of the arms and floated lightly about the face.

Captain Molyneux, who is English, follows the charming custom of his country in choosing little pages to accompany the bride, and this house makes many costumes on the slim and somewhat stately lines that best become the tall beauty. When the cut is very plain there are rich garnitures, such as embroideries of pearls, and lighter fabrics than satin or velvet are often employed.

Red and Gold Taffeta Ribbon Bands Are Used

Showing a tailored two-piece georgette dress attractively decorated with red and gold taffeta ribbon bands. The vestee is of white pleated georgette and the blue felt hat has a red grosgrain band. The pin is of red and rhinestones.

For Unbobbed Heads

A new type of hat now separates the bobbed from the unbobbed. So many women are letting their hair grow out again that there has come a demand for a medium head size, as well as medium heights of crown and widths of brim. The majority of these hats are very soft fine felt, with comparatively little trimming.

Silk Flowers Used

Silk flowers are still very much in vogue and because they are so reasonable and to count for the fur coat collar many women are buying one to match every gown or to transform up the black dress so that when the collars of their coats are thrown back these little accessories flash forth color and feminine distinction.

Pointing Out Duty

The object of preaching is to point out duty; to remind mankind of what mankind is constantly forgetting; not to supply the defects of human intelligence, but to supply the forgetfulness of human resolutions.—Sydney Smith.

ELOPING PAIR CLAIM TO HAVE BEEN MARRIED SUNDAY

Joseph Napoli and Eva Fish, youthful sleepers of Walden who disappeared last week, have been located, says the Newburgh News of Monday. They claim to have been married Sunday in Rosendale and Monday Chief of Police Rook of Walden was with the pair seeking to confirm the marriage. A warrant charging abduction is said to have been issued for the arrest of Napoli who is 18 years old. Last week the youth traded in his father's Ford sedan for a touring car and endorsed a check payable to his father, offering it as part payment for the touring car. Afterward the youth and the Walden girl, who is 15, were seen driving toward Poughkeepsie. No word was received from them until last Friday when the girl's parents and the boy's received a letter from each.

GREENE COUNTY ALMS HOUSE INMATE TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

WOMEN INVITED TO ANNUAL MISSIONARY MEETING.

An invitation is extended to all women of the city interested in missions to attend the annual meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Kingston District to be held on Wednesday, May 26, at the St. James M. E. Church. The morning session will begin at 11 o'clock and the afternoon session at 2:30 o'clock. The special speaker at the morning gathering will be Mrs. Samuel Williams of New York city and in the afternoon Miss Mary Collins of Pittsburgh will address the meeting. Special music at both sessions will be rendered by Miss Mansmere and Mrs Rich and the Y. W. C. A. Mandolin Club, conducted by Mrs. Buley.

Grouping of Furniture

Arranging the furniture in a number of definite groupings is the modern trend in decorating a room. A grouping will consist of, for example, a console table with mirror above, a lowboy on either side and a small rug in front of it. Another grouping will be a desk with a panel lamp back of it and flanked on either side with a chair.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAY 25, 1926.

The reporters of great increase in juvenile crime, curiously enough, have overlooked that Brooklyn girl who has become a novelist at the age of twelve years.

Philadelphia contends that it is the other fellow who is slow, pointing to the fact that, with the opening of the Sesquicentennial only two weeks off, New York, Illinois, Ohio and some other States that have made provision for buildings of their own have not yet broken ground for them.

The National Woman's Party, which spurns the laws for bettering the condition of women workers as based on the assumption that women are "inferior creatures," has not earned the enthusiastic gratitude of the women who toil. Mrs. Sara Conboy, who until recently represented the American Federation of Labor on an advisory committee of the Department of Labor, is quoted as saying that the leaders of the National Woman's Party "never knew what it meant to work"—and further: "The only thing that I could wish for them in their propaganda is that Miss Alice Paul, Mrs. Malone and Miss Maude Younger could each be assigned, one to climb telegraph poles, one to be an iron moulder and the third to be a miner in the bowels of the earth."

PRONOUNCING "NORGE."

The radio announcers, and doubtless the American public generally pronounce Amundsen's dirigible, in one syllable to rhyme with "George." According to an Associated Press statement, the word has two syllables, which any one with some acquaintance with European languages would naturally expect, and is properly pronounced "Norgeh." But this is wrong, according to the New York Times, which says "Nor-guh" is as near the real Norwegian pronunciation as Americans can hope to arrive—adding: "Careful folk will give the last syllable a sound verging toward 'ah,' but not quite reaching it, and if they have heard Norwegians speak the name of the country they will make a more or less unsuccessful effort to give the 'g' a mild guttural sound, mixed in with a little of the sound of 'y'."

But why should even "careful folk" make a stilted effort to do what they can not quite achieve? Is not an honest Anglicization of foreign proper names in better taste, particularly when we are not quite sure of the exact native pronunciation? Moreover, it is inconsistent to give the native pronunciation of some names while accepting the Anglicization of others. We all give Paris an English pronunciation, joining the French in saying "Paree" only when in jest. What educated and intelligent person among us is so absurd as to insist on the native pronunciation of Italian names of cities, calling Rome "Roma," Naples "Napoli," Florence "Firenzi," Venice "Venezia," or Leghorn "Livorna"? Sticklers for the correct native pronunciation of foreign proper names seem to be unaware of their inconsistency in so frequently departing from their own impracticable rule.

PROGRESS AND CRIMINALITY.

The fact that criminals are widely profiting by modern progress and the use of new inventions is receiving grave consideration in high quarters. A special commission of the Illinois State Bar Association reports that the enforcement of criminal laws has been "devised for rural conditions existing before the days of good roads and the automobile," and there is need of reform for that reason alone. The Department of Justice at Washington has expressed the view that one of the causes of the increase in commercial frauds is the use of rapid motor vehicles. In this connection Dean Pound of the Harvard Law School expects that "aviation will bring in many problems." So being possibly acquainted with the fact that airplanes are already employed by enterprising bootleggers, Dean Pound, like the committee of the Illinois Bar Association, thinks there is need of reform in police administration, prosecuting machinery, the courts and punitive processes, in order that criminal procedure may be adjusted to meet the demands of the new conditions.

The fact that the cunning and success of criminals keep pace with modern invention and progress, that criminality is increased and even inspired thereby, is matter of great interest to reflecting observers, and can hardly be overlooked even by those who think that moral progress is necessarily involved in mere enlightenment and material advancement. The idea long held by many that mere education involves or is productive of morality is receiving some rather severe blows in these times.

THE SLOW INTESTINE.

A Denver physician has been carrying out an interesting experiment by taking repeated X-rays of the passage of food through intestinal tract, beginning in infancy, and following them up to adult life. In addition to the X-ray examination he studied other findings and the habits of the patients as to diet, rest, and exercise. The children were selected from families in all walks of life, and living under various conditions. It was found that there seemed to be a slowness, almost a stoppage, "stasis" as it is called, in two portions of the large intestine. The large intestine as you know is the last of the intestinal canal, and is a sort of a reservoir for the waste matter of the food, after all has been absorbed from it by the small intestine.

This stoppage or stasis is a serious matter, as it allows the blood to absorb some of this waste matter into itself, thus causing a low form of poisoning.

This investigator found that the waste matter was delayed in the large intestine because too much of its fluid contents had been removed. He attributed this to the fact that the food taken was not "rough" enough to promote muscular motion of the intestinal walls.

Insufficient exercise of the abdominal muscles was considered another important factor in causing the stasis.

Now is this dangerous?

If untreated it may become a surgical condition, but surgery is absolutely unnecessary if a little common sense is used.

This physician has been able to correct the condition, by having the patients use rough foods like bran and the flake cereals, plenty of fruit, whole wheat bread, and root vegetables. In addition to this he prescribes the twisting and bending exercises for the abdomen. As you know the abdominal muscles run up and down, crossways and obliquely, and the exercise of these muscles actually plays upon the contents of the intestine and stimulates action there, thus preventing this stoppage or stasis.

A great deal is written about constipation, and folks perhaps think too much is made of it, but the outstanding men in medicine and surgery are a unit in warning of its dangers.

Virgil Everett, Sam Bernstein, Jr., and Stephen Miller took over management of Kingston Point Casino.

The Hudson Valley Chambers of Commerce held sessions in Kingston.

Kingston exchanged personal greetings with San Francisco at Elks' Club, where more than three hundred leading business and professional men "listened in" on the trans-continental telephone wire. The "Hello dinner" had been arranged through New York Telephone Company officials.

Hot Roast Beef Supper.

On Wednesday evening, May 26, from 5 to 8 o'clock, Circle No. 2 of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Church of the Comforter will serve a hot roast beef supper at the church hall, Wynkoop Place. The following is the menu: Hot roast beef, mashed potatoes, peas, olives and radishes, cabbage salad, wheat and rye bread, fruited jello, coffee and ice cream. The public is invited.

A Tribute.

As a band of Christian women the managers of the "Industrial Home" bow in reconciliation to the death of their beloved co-worker, Mrs. G. D. B. Hasbrouck.

She had been a member of the Board of Managers for over twenty years, and was closely identified with the work of the "Home," serving as corresponding secretary for several years.

At the beginning of this year she was elected first vice president and while her death seems untimely, it is a comfort to know that her interest continued to the end.

The memory of her beautiful, ever-ready smile, her charming personality, her keen temperament and sympathetic nature will always remain with us.

It can truly be said of her, as of one long ago, "She, being dead, yet speaketh."

Today's Story in New York History

By Frederic A. Godcharles.

(Copyright, 1926, by the Author)

Colonel Meigs Surprised British and Destroyed Valuable Stores at Sag Harbor May 25, 1777.

When the British were firmly seated in New York, Staten Island and Long Island, they tempted the Americans with the gains to be derived from bartering soil products for the finery of European looms and work-shops. A brisk business was established upon this basis of exchange, and it assumed a dangerous form, for it became a vehicle for the supply of the British army and navy with the necessaries of life.

From almost every inlet along the Connecticut coast, light boats, freighted with provisions, darted across to the islands, or to the British vessels anchored in the channels. The trade became so profitable that honest supplies did not meet the demand, and many of these whale-boatmen became marauders, and plundered from friend and foe alike.

There were many expeditions made in the small whale-boats by patriots for worthy purposes. First of consequence was when Lord Sterling and associates January 23, 1776, went in four boats and captured a British transport, lying off Sandy Hook; another was when Colonel William Barton, in a bold and hazardous exploit, captured General Robert Prescott, and the daring expeditions of Major Benjamin Tallmadge.

General Samuel H. Parsons, in command in New Haven, Connecticut, sent Lieutenant Colonel Return Jonathan Meigs with one hundred and seventy men in thirty whale-boats to capture or destroy the forage which the enemy had gathered at Sag Harbor, at the eastern end of Long Island, protected by an armed schooner and a company of infantry.

Meigs crossed the sound from Guilford on May 23, 1777. They arrived at Southold at six o'clock in the evening, and carried their boats almost eight miles that night. They lay concealed in the forest the next day, and at evening proceeded to the eastern end of Peconic Bay, where they re-embarked.

When within four miles of Sag Harbor, Meigs concealed his boats in the woods, and with one hundred and thirty men marched to attack the British guard at two o'clock in the morning of May 25, 1777.

The alarm soon spread, and a schooner, armed with twelve cannons, opened fire upon the patriots. It was returned with spirit, and, at the same time, the vessels in the harbor were set on fire.

The Americans killed or captured the whole British force, destroyed all the shipping, consisting of twelve brigs and sloops, destroyed one hundred tons of hay, a large quantity of rum and much other stores and valuable merchandise.

Colonel Meigs, with ninety prisoners, arrived at Guilford at two o'clock the next day, without the loss of a man. This expedition involved ninety miles of transportation, most of the route in whale-boats. Six of the British were killed in the action.

Retaliation followed this enterprise and the people on Long Island and the main land, suffered much. At length nine Tories crossed the Sound in a whale-boat, from Lloyd's Neck to the Fairfield County coast, where General G. S. Silliman was stationed in his own house.

One of the Tories was a carpenter who had been employed by the general and knew the premises well. They forced an entrance into his house at midnight, seized him and his son, and carried them to General John G. Simcoe, at Oyster Bay. From thence they were taken to New York, and afterward to Flatbush, Long Island, where they remained until exchanged six months afterward.

For his brilliant exploit Congress, July 25, thanked Colonel Meigs, and gave him an elegant sword.

Colonel Meigs commanded a regiment under General Anthony Wayne at the storming of Stony Point, and was honorably mentioned by Washington.

FIND "FELIX" AT CROSSPATCH CENTER.

"Find Felix" will be the magic slogan at Crosspatch May party, Saturday evening, May 29. This is a new form of the treasure hunt, now very popular in New York. It is held in-doors and all who come to the party are welcome to join in the search.

"Felix" will be brought from New York by Mrs. Cross and secreted in the Community House; but as to whether Felix is fish, flesh, fowl, flower or something inanimate—well the lucky person can give out that information. Felix will become the property of the finder and a crisp one-dollar bill goes with him or it to carry out the treasure idea.

No need to come too early, for Felix will not be hidden in the appointed place until after 9:30.

While Felix will surely be in the Community House, the secret attic is barred as a hiding place. Mrs. Cross thinks the heavy stone which drops on the chain as the door slides up to reveal the staircase, might hit some impetuous treasure-seeker on the head. Those who have been up to New Crosspatch will remember that the addition to the old wing of the historic house, leaves one side of the secret attic opening over the Community House floor like a sort of roof balcony. It's rather a tantalizing sort of place and much beloved of "petters" who fear not to brave the secret stairway and indeed have been known to hold it against newcomers in good old Indian fashion. There's electric light up there now and a switch to turn it on in the lower hall, so modern science will perhaps dismay the "petters," who are really very nice young people anyway and entitled to have lots of joy out of life.

Saturday evening in May is quite the ideal time for dancing, so New Crosspatch hopes to welcome young and old from miles around as usual, to dance the lovely old fashioned square dances, with Walter Hoffman "calling off" if we are lucky and Walter Shultais and his chums furnishing real music.

If the weather keeps cool there might even be a bit of fire in the quaint fire place, of which Crosspatch is very proud.

Hot dogs, coffee and cake will be served gipsy fashion before the guests leave, for no May party would seem complete without them.

As Memorial Day falls on Sunday and will be generally observed on Monday, Crosspatch will be open to callers on both days, and Mrs. Cross will be glad to see more of the "I've been reading about Crosspatch-for-years," people, who have always been intending to drive up there some day and never got around to it before. New Crosspatch is on the Gould road and less than a mile from the state road at Willow. While not so picturesque as the earlier house up on the mountain, it is easier to get to it and under the shadow of Olderbarck Mountain Willow valley stretches to all its loveliness. Rip Van Winkle is sleeping very late this season, possibly because the weather has been so chilly, but the children are looking to see him most any day now, and hope he will be at the party.

Crosspatch House will be decorated with spring flowers and expects to live up to the record that the May party is the loveliest of the year. Mrs. Cross will be up from New York with Felix, in good time for the party and will stay a few days.

The Vogue for Things Spanish Includes the Robe de Style, the Sailor, the Shawl—and a Romantic Flavor.

It takes Reboux, of Paris, to turn a trick such as uniting a draped crown and a straight-sailor brim—that is, to unite them harmoniously. Reboux has had so many successes in the course of her millinery career that one visualizes her as daring enough to attempt almost any innovation, no matter how revolutionary.

Of course, sailors are now being recognized in society, especially those whose last port of call was Cherbourg or Havre, though in truth they look as though the clearing papers should read Barcelona or Cadiz.

Deep Ecru Lace Is Used to Develop a Youthful Frock with Molded Bodice and Skirt in Tiered Ruffles, the Hem-line Rising at the Front. Bronze Ribbon and Red Roses Make a Graceful Decoration Posed at the Waistline.

Of the many uncertainties of the mode, past, present, and to come, one thing seems certain: there is bound to be, every so often, a recurrence of the mode espagnol. Spain has always been capable of casting a spell upon us, especially now when most of our houses, or apartments even, smack of the Spanish main or romantic Italy. There is justification for a very spirited revival of interest in Spanish costumes, colors and motifs. It seems as though new life might even be injected into prints, if they could be credited with a Spanish origin.

The robe de style is an established favorite for the young ladies of fashion who wish to be picturesque, and its vogue is given an additional impetus, and a new flavor, by this craze for things Spanish. Tiered laces are especially characteristic—cream-color, for instance, with huge red roses splashed about, and a brilliant shawl in the background. The dainty black lace shawls, which the Spanish senoritas wear over their high combs, also find a place in the summer evening mode, as the moonlight manifestation of the ever present, popular scarf motif.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

KING LION

"They say," commenced King Lion, when Queen Lioness with a great roar interrupted him.

"Whom you remark that 'they say', do you mean people?"

"I do," said King Lion.

"They say so," snarled Queen Lioness.

"You're mighty cross today," said King Lion.

"Well, it is the business of a lioness to be cross. Every lioness deserves the title of queen of the beasts far more than the lions deserve the name they have been given of king of the beasts.

"We are far wilder. We say it often but it is true. We're more dangerous."

Queen Lioness roared and showed her teeth as she said this, so that visitors at the zoo drew back from the railing outside of the big cages where the lions were and trembled just a little

Her voice was very loud and terrible to hear.

"Go on with your story," she said after a moment.

"People say," roared King Lion and Queen Lioness smiled the best smile she could give which was a pretty wild looking smile, and added:

"That's better."

"People say," continued King Lion, "that when I am free I am a coward. They—I mean people—think because I go quietly through the forest, trying not to be seen that I am a coward.

"Then, when they see or hear me roar and let myself be seen on the plains, they say I have no sense.

"They complain of me whatever I do, and they are always giving their reasons about my actions.

"Then other animals show their superiority in many ways—that is a grand word meaning that they show they can do some finer things than I can do.

"They tell their stories.

"They have reasons for their actions too.

"It is true that I go silently and craftily through the forest.

"It is because I do not wish to be seen. I wish to hunt and capture my prey without being caught."

"You're a clever old lion," said Queen Lioness, "but you are not as smart as I am."

"When I roar," continued King Lion, "and shout and expose myself to danger that way and people say I am foolish and foolhardy and so convinced about boasting that I cannot help but be seen, they want me to be perfect and do not think of their own shortcomings.

"Don't they like to hear themselves talk?

"Don't they boast when they succeed? Haven't I heard gentlemen with their little boys here at the zoo. One gentleman has talked to another, and in a loud human voice, one has said:

"'Yes, I did pretty well in business last year. I had a pretty good year.'

"The other isn't going to be outdone and he will say:

"'Well, I had a pretty good year myself.'

"And then one little boy will say to another little boy:

"'I have a toy automobile and it goes too.'

"And the other one says:

"'That's nothing. I've got a camel.'

"For they talk about the lion's boasting and roaring! But I am not a coward. I cannot do as some I did. People do not give me a fair chance. They hunt me with guns. What chance have I against guns?

"I don't fight with guns. They have everything on their side.

"I have to be careful, too."

"Ha, ha, ha," said Queen Lioness. "I can't be bothered talking to you any more. Here comes my dinner."

Just at that moment huge pieces of meat were thrown in the lions' cages and for a moment or two everything in the lion house was very, very still. But when they had finished King Lion began again:

"People assume cowardice for cleverness. I'm not a coward, but I'm clever. Especially considering the advantage they have over the poor lion with their wicked firearms."

No Argument

Uncle—My boy, it will pay you to be diligent in your studies. Remember, what you have learned no one can ever take from you.

There was a funeral the other day out in Hot Dog, Ariz., and while the minister was reading the service, two shots were fired in the street outside.

The undertaker tiptoed forth. In a minute or so he was back again with a smile on his face.

"I secured both funerals," he whispered to the chief mourner.

The burglar had served his sentence and was being discharged from prison. The governor gave him a long sermon on the need to mend his ways and finally dismissed him. But the discharged burglar still remained.

"What are you waiting for?" asked the governor.

"My tools!"

"You don't mean to say," a husband chided his wife, "that you paid $250 for that gown?" to which she replied: "Oh, no; I left that for you to do."

Stewart stamina laughs at the years

THE 4, 5, 8, 10 and 12 year old Stewart trucks daily outworking younger trucks of equal tonnage and greater cost tell their own story. Stewart Trucks are built for that sort of service. They stay on the road and out of the shop. They save gasoline, oil, and tires. They are America's greatest truck value. A stand up dollar-for-dollar comparison of Stewarts with any other truck on the market will make you a Stewart booster for life.

Uni-Slyke Whips K. & M., 15 to 7

In a wild and listless game Monday evening at the Athletic Field, the Uni-Slyke walked all over their opponents, the K. & M. Silk Mills in the Industrial League, 15-7, shoving them farther down in the cellar.

There were two down in the first inning for the Silkmen when Colvin got wild and walked two and hit Butler, and forced in a run. Butler stifled one, letting in two more runs. Three singles in a row shoved across two more runs.

The Silkmen were able to score but one more, one in the fourth and one in the fifth.

The Uni-Slyke crossed the rubber three times in the first inning on errors by Brayton and Kennedy, and hits by Atkins, Nichols and R. Williams.

They scored five more in the second. In the third Atkins lost the ball in left field, getting a home run. He scored Colvin ahead of him. They scored again in the fourth and fifth. Kennedy and Bowers pitched for the Silkmen.

AMERICAN GOLFERS SAIL FOR ENGLAND.

New York, May 25.—Walter Hagen, who is expected to be America's best bet in the British Open Championship matches next month, his wife, three other American golfers on the Aquitania today.

With the two-time winner of the classic will be Al Watrous, a promising young professional from the Northwest, Tom Armour, who made good showing in the southern tournaments last winter, and Joe Kirkwood, his latest protege.

Last Night's Fights.

At New York—Ray Miller, Chicago, featherweight, beat Charlie Goldman, New York, 10 rounds.

Eddie Bernbrock, Baltimore welterweight, knocked out Willie Dillon, Cuba, in the 10th round.

Johnny Kilbane, Cleveland, featherweight, won from Bobby Garcia, New York, six rounds.

At Stamford, Conn.—Johnny Van Doren featherweight, beat Wesley Spencer, New York, 10 rounds.

Changes in Colonial Line-up

Billy Allen and Johnny Murray, Manager Eddie Phelps's collegian players from New York who were brought to the Colonial camp at the start of the season by Art Smith, will not be in the line-up of the locals against the Havana Cubans next Sunday. At a secret powpow before the Plainfield match it was made known the collegians after June 15 would sign up with a fast team in a Massachusetts semi-pro league.

By going to Massachusetts the Colonial's second baseman and outfielder will have an opportunity to play ball every day while if they remained with the locals they would be playing ball only three times a week at the most.

Two Generals Coming.

In place of Allen and Murray the local manager will bring Marterer, a former D. and H. General, to cover short and Fred Miller, also a former General, to help in the outfield.

Manager Phelps, Lou Brown and Hugh McTague went behind closed doors with the squad before Sunday's game in an effort to choose the local's line-up for the balance of the season for after three games Manager Phelps has been able to get a line on his men and choose the regulars for the season. As before, the pitching staff will be made up of Art Smith, Rossback and Eddie Baker with Kelly Herbst catching. The rest of the line-up will remain the same with the exception of the two changes mentioned. Eddie Phelps, Jr., will be used in the outfield.

For the holiday games Manager Phelps will add two more twirlers to his staff. Russell, who was with the locals last season, and Gorski, a former D. and H. twirler, will don the Colonial regalia for the holiday contests.

Tagging Major League Bases

Urban shocker pitched the Yanks to a 4 to 2 victory over the Red Sox, boosting the team's winning steak to thirteen games. The Yankees now lead the league by seven full games.

The Browns, afraid to return home with only one victory, worked themselves into a fury and beat the Indians, 8 to 5. Shaute and Levsen cracked under the strain while Gaston managed to last nine innings.

Three homers featured Chicago's victory over Detroit, 10 to 4.

The Cubs advanced to within a game and a half of first place in the National League by stopping the Pirates, 3 to 1. The winners were outbatted nearly two to one but Blake was effective in the pinches.

With Rixey pitching hitless ball for five innings, Cincinnati apparently had the Cardinals beaten to a frazzle, but the Cards peppered Eppa and his successor, Carl Mays, and won out by a score of 11 to 6. A seven run rally in the eighth was the finishing touch.

Giants' Spark Has Dwindled

Jennings Had What the Giants Need Worse at This Time, Pep and Optimism — Jennings's Stories Helped.

New York, May 25.—"Eeyah!"

That rallying cry of the old New York Giants is heard no more and the Giants have just about ceased to rally.

Some of the spark went out of the four-time champions when the echo of the last "Eeyah" dwindled and died and day by day in every way they miss it more and more.

From that short staccato battle cry has sprung many a ninth-inning victory. In itself it didn't mean a thing. It was the spirit that counted.

"Eeyah, Pepper. You can do it," Jennings, right knee high and fists flailing away like a shadow boxer's, would bark. And somehow, Pepper would do it. And so would Frankie and Kelly and Pancho, and the Giants would go riding on to victory, while Hughie harvested the last blade of grass and danced his solitary waltz along the coaching line.

"Two gentlemen out," the carrot-topped graduate of the old Orioles would announce. "Now we'll make five runs."

He was and is a great Hughie. The Giants didn't realize how great until he was missed from his post this spring. Jennings had what the Polo Grounds patrol needs worse than anything just now—pep and optimism.

The Scranton barrister was never licked until the last man was away in the ninth, but when he was licked he refused to let it get his goat. This spring McGraw's team has battled grimly enough in the face of adversity on the field, but off the diamond it has been taking its losses too seriously.

Roger Bresnahan, who has taken the place of Jennings, is absolutely disconsolate when the team loses. Alongside Roger on these all too frequent occasions, Gil Dobie, the weeping willow of Lake Cayuga, is the incarnation of sunshine and laughter.

When Bresnahan does a Hamlet in the corner, Jennings would be in the middle of the gang telling them how he made six hits and handled twenty-two chances against Brooklyn in '94 or how one of the old Orioles pitched a no-hit double-header in '92 with a broken arm. Take it from Hughie, those Orioles were plenty hard; but when pressed, he would admit that by and large they were quite a baseball club.

"You cawn't get it, you cawn't get it," Jennings would sing out with his best English accent as a foul would soar over the grand stand. That goes for the Giants now. They "cawn't" get in this pennant race unless they try and never stop trying.

If they do that, win or lose, Hughie Jennings will call to them from somewhere, "Eeyah!"

New Record for Hudson Regatta

New York, May 25.—With nineteen crews already registered for the annual Poughkeepsie regatta, and the twentieth in sight, this year's inter-collegiate rowing event on June 28 will be the greatest ever staged on the historic Hudson River Course.

The entries were boosted to nineteen with the application of the University of California Junior Varsity Crew. The expected entry of the University of Wisconsin Freshman boat will make certain of an even score of starters, according to Maxwell Stevenson, chairman of the Stewards, and Reynolds Benson, Executive Secretary of the Inter-collegiate Rowing Association.

The Varsity entries are Pennsylvania, Columbia, Syracuse, Cornell, Wisconsin, California, Washington and Navy. In the Junior Varsity will be California, Washington, Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Cornell and Columbia, and in the Freshman Event Wisconsin, California, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell and Syracuse will compete.

Last year's regatta with seventeen crews set the record which has now been broken.

WOODSTOCK BEATS POLICE CAMP TEAM.

The Police Camp team, made up of players of the Saugerties A. C., played the Woodstock A. C. at Woodstock on Sunday.

The Cops with Baker pitching, were leading 9 to 6 in the seventh inning. Woodstock got their heavy artillery in action in their half of the seventh, and when the smoke cleared away, eight runs had crossed the plate, which proved to be four more than enough to win.

Two Supreme Sixes

Chrysler Quality and Value In a New Low-Priced Six

The new Chrysler "60"—a lower-priced six—is unqualifiedly guaranteed to give you more value for your money than any other car in its class.

This supreme value is assured you because in designing the "60" Chrysler Engineers set about creating a car of entirely original design and construction, going the absolute limit to put into it a dollar's worth of value for every dollar of its purchase price.

In Chrysler "60" there is also the same supreme quality that has been built into the famous Chrysler "70" and the unsurpassable Imperial "80"—a quality that is now a definitely known quantity in motordom.

Reduced $50 to $200—Unchanged Except Price

At these new sensationally lower prices all features of supremacy of the famous Chrysler "70" which have set it apart as the standard of motoring in its class for more than two years, are made even more outstanding.

For in the accomplishment of these new lower prices there is absolutely no change in the performance, quality, comfort, style, equipment, design or workmanship in body or chassis which have proved themselves in tens of thousands of miles of driving by thousands upon thousands of owners.

These sensational reductions today establish Chrysler "70" even more exceptionally as the world's one outstanding motor car value in its class.

You will find us eager to demonstrate to you the extraordinary features at these new prices of Chrysler "60" or Chrysler "70"

Smash Records in Track Meet Here

Inter-scholastic Track and Field Records of Hudson Valley Broken in Mile Run, High Jump, Pole Vault and Dash.

Saturday at Memorial Field the athletes of Newburgh won the New York State sectional track meet of this section, with 24½ points to their credit. Goshen came in second with 23 points and Kingston High School third with 18½ points.

Four valley inter-scholastic track and field records were smashed during the afternoon and another was badly beat but not broken. The new records are for the mile run, high jump, pole vault, and the 220 yard dash. Hallis Smith of Monroe established the new record for the mile run by making the distance in four minutes 57½ seconds. Maharry of Newburgh with a flying leap captured the high jump with a jump of five feet eight inches, while the pole vault record was smashed by Webber of Kingston, who cleared the bar at ten feet. Buley of Port Jervis held the track record made in 1924. The last record to fall was the 220 yard dash, Babcock of Goshen leading the pack in record time of 10.5.

The Summaries.

One Mile Run—Smith, Monroe, first; Scanlon, Kingston, second; Van Wicken, Goshen, third; Barton, Poughkeepsie, fourth. Time—4:57.5.

Program of Home Bureau This Week

Dr. Laidlaw of the State Department of Health in the County for Four Lectures—Landscape Art an Interesting Feature.

The Ulster County Home Bureau has before it another week full of events. Dr. Laidlaw of the State Department of Health has been secured for four lectures in the county and lantern slides have been secured from the State College of Agriculture and the U. S. Department of Agriculture on "Beautifying the Farmstead" which will be shown in other communities.

The Rosendale unit of the Home Bureau is the first to hold a meeting this week when this afternoon Dr. Laidlaw spoke at the Baptist Church parlors.

At 7:30 standard time Tuesday evening Dr. Laidlaw will address the Gardiner Home Bureau and friends. The meeting will be held in the Gardiner school house. All Gardiner and adjoining communities are expecting to hear Dr. Laidlaw on this occasion.

West Hurley lays claim to a part of Dr. Laidlaw's time while in the county, so on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock standard time he will address the West Hurley community. West Hurley always turns out to meetings worth while. The meeting will be held in the Methodist Church.

Three Communities Meet Thursday.

At the Grange Hall in New Paltz the first of the three will be held when at 1:30 standard time, Miss Evelyn Nance, Home Bureau manager, will conduct a round table discussion on the newer phases of food and nutrition and a demonstration of attractive salads will be given. The Home Bureau membership, fifty strong, with friends are expected to be present.

The High Falls community will greet Dr. Laidlaw in the evening. The meeting will be held in the basement of the Reformed Church beginning at 7:30, standard time. After the lecture, refreshments will be served. To all these meetings Dr. Laidlaw will bring a message that will mean much to each community in maintaining proper health standards and each Home Bureau extends to all an urgent invitation to be present.

Special invitations are out to each member of the Kingston unit of the Home Bureau to a little "at home" affair Thursday evening, when Mrs. William A. Warren, chairman of the Ulster County Home Bureau; Miss Lillian Nelson, chairman of the Kingston unit, and Miss Nance will meet the membership at the offices of the Home Bureau, 54 Crown street, where a pleasant evening is anticipated. Miss Nance will give a short talk on "Beautification of our Home Grounds," illustrated with slides, and refreshments will be served. Plans for a June picnic and other business matters will be considered.

Meetings on Friday.

Modena has an all day meeting Friday at the home of Mrs. Ward Black, beginning at 10:30. Luncheon will be served at noon after which the illustrated discussion on Landscape Art will be given by Miss Nance. The Modena people never miss an opportunity to get together for a good social and educational meeting, so the success of this meeting is assured.

Last, but by no means the least, will be the meeting at Accord Friday night. Plans are under way for a big picnic up Rondout valley way in June, so Accord is going to get in line Friday night to plan their part in the picnic and discuss other business matters. The meeting will be held in the Methodist Church Hall beginning at 8 o'clock, standard time. Miss Nance will be with the two sets of slides on "Beautiful Landscaping" and the whole community, men, children, and all are going to be present.

Stamps Issued Recently

The Post Office department says that the following stamps have been issued since 1924: Huguenot-Walloon tercentenary stamps—½ cent, 1½ cents; ordinary stamps—13 cents, 17 cents; Lexington-Concord commemorative stamps—15 cents; 20 cents, special delivery; 25 cents, special handling; Norse-American commemorative stamps; air-mail—10 cents.

One of the first lecturers in this country to receive a fee in the days when lyceum programs were generally given free of charge was Daniel Webster, to whom Concord (Mass.) paid $100 for a single lecture. Ralph Waldo Emerson, however, may be said to have created the profession.

Amazon Is Widest

The Amazon river is the widest in the world. It is between one and two miles wide where it enters Brazil and gradually increases in breadth to fifty miles at its main mouth. Where it enters the sea the distance across the water from headland to headland is fully one hundred and fifty miles.

Don't Say "Don't," To Be Obeyed

"Put the Commandments in the Affirmative Instead of the Negative," Urges Prof. Matteson of New Paltz Normal School," and They Will Be Obeyed."

The annual spring meeting of the Hudson Valley Schoolwomen's Club was held on Saturday, May 22, at the Y. M. C. A. The business session started at 10:30 in the morning during which time the following officers were elected: President, Miss Edna Craig, Newburgh; vice-president, Miss Gertrude Burhans, Kingston; treasurer, Miss Ada S. Fuller, Kingston; recording secretary, Miss Eunice Brown, Beacon; corresponding secretary, Miss Roberta Smith, Newburgh.

The club voted that the secretary write a letter to Governor Smith thanking him for his interest in signing the Fitzpatrick bill.

A cordial invitation was extended to the club to hold its fall meeting at Cold Spring.

The Round Table discussion which followed was conducted by Prof. Matteson of the New Paltz Normal School.

In what points are students entering Normal School or college found to be weak and in what do they seem prepared? He said that it is found that students do better in oral expression than in written statements.

Is this to be commended or deplored? He applied this thought in the study of history. Are students prepared in history, simply by knowing historical facts and being able to write these facts in statements? The study of history should train students to correlate events of the past with results of the future and to apply this knowledge. They must get the "historical sense" in order to reason and think constructively.

Prof. Matteson thought that the students of today are more able to do this than the student of yesterday.

From this thought he led to the fact that teachers and parents should have the "historical sense" in training the youth. The young people must be judged by the standards of tomorrow rather than by the standards of yesterday.

The fact was made clear that the youth of today are strong in initiative and far more frank and honest than the youth of yesterday, who was always nice and when he wasn't he concealed the fact, thus adding hypocrisy.

At this conclusion of his talk Prof. Matteson said:

"Raise your voice in commendation rather than condemnation if you wish results. Put the Commandments into the affirmative instead of the negative and they will be obeyed."

At one o'clock a very delicious luncheon was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. The menu was as follows:

Celery. Olives.
Chicken Concomme.
Fried Chicken.
Mashed Potatoes. Peas.
Salad.
Rolls. Coffee.
Ice Cream. Cake.

Dr. Arthur Flick, state historian, related some very interesting facts concerning the history of the state of New York. During the course of his talk he told of the different rulers of the Empire State which summarized are as follows: First, the American Indian; second, the French for a period of 150 years to the end of the French and Indian War; third, the Dutch for 50 years; fourth, the English for 100 years, and lastly the Americans who by forming a republic brought about the Revolutionary War.

Dr. Flick reminded the teachers that at the present moment the State of New York is in the midst of its one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the American Revolution and urged each one to do something in celebration of this great event to show their appreciation of what their ancestors did in that great war.

The committees in charge of the meeting were as follows: Committee on arrangements, Miss Frieda L. Hayes; committee on decorations, Miss Maude Curry, Miss E. Mae Brown, Miss E. Lasher.

The First Telephone

It is appropriate enough that this year should see the triumphant exchange of wireless telephone messages between Long Island and Rugby, because it was just fifty years ago, in 1876, that Graham Bell constructed the first practical telephone.

He had been working on the idea for some years, and it was at the Philadelphia exhibition in 1876 that he exhibited it.

There is another link, also, for Graham Bell went on from his original telephone to make experiments in the possibilities of wireless communication, and produced in 1880 his photophone, in which light was used to transmit sound. Graham Bell bridged 213 yards of space, over which he sent both words and musical notes.

Lutherans Favor Free Speech

Public Officials Unwarranted in Repression of Free Speech and Lawful Assembly, Says Synod Committee—Wants Lutherans to Uphold Law.

The Committee on Moral and Social Welfare of the Lutheran Synod of New York and New England, which is to present its report at the silver jubilee convention of the Synod, June 1-3, in the Church of the Reformation, Rochester, N. Y., has placed on record its conviction that "it is the privilege and duty of every citizen" to uphold the Eighteenth Amendment in that it "is a part of our Federal Constitution" and the Volstead Act in that it "is a national and state law." The committee also calls on the members of the Synod—of which there are nearly 50,000—to encourage other citizens in upholding the law.

The committee, without passing judgment on the issues involved in the anthracite coal strike and the Passaic textile strike, declares that "it is quite evident that the church has an urgent mission to perform in applying the Gospel in the field of industry." Concerning the coal strike the committee draws attention to the fact that it was almost entirely free from violence. "The public generally was markedly apathetic, both toward the issues involved in the strike and toward the suffering caused among the strikers and the poorer classes of consumers, and the inconvenience caused to the public in general."

The report of the committee adds: "It is worthy of note that during the strike the report of the Federal Coal Commission received scant attention from Congress and that since the settlement of the strike practically nothing has been done to prevent a recurrence.

"Regarding the textile strike in Passaic, N. J., and neighboring towns, it may be observed that the leadership among the strikers is more radical than in the coal strike, and that there has been a marked absence of violence on their part, but that the public officials were unwarranted in their vigorous repression of free speech and lawful assembly."

The committee commends the nationwide observance of "Better Homes Week" and states that in this connection recognition might well be made of the bill passed for the purpose of providing good housing at a lower rental than now offered. "Since this measure limits the dividend to six per cent, it will be interesting to note whether sufficient capital is attracted to make it effective in practice. Surely there is sufficient wealth in the control of people who should be willing to invest in an enterprise of so humane a character."

The general interest taken in combatting crime meets with the approval of the committee, which also adds: "There does not seem to be sufficient recognition of the value of moral and spiritual training as a means of crime prevention. The church might well claim a larger acknowledgement for its services, and ought to increase its efforts in religious education."

The Rev. Howard R. Gold, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity, New Rochelle, N. Y., is chairman of the committee, which, in addition to Pastor Gold, consists of the Rev. C. E. Krumbholz, executive city missionary, New York city; the Rev. Walter Krumwiede, D. D., pastor of Grace Church, Rochester, and Paul C. Holter of New Rochelle.

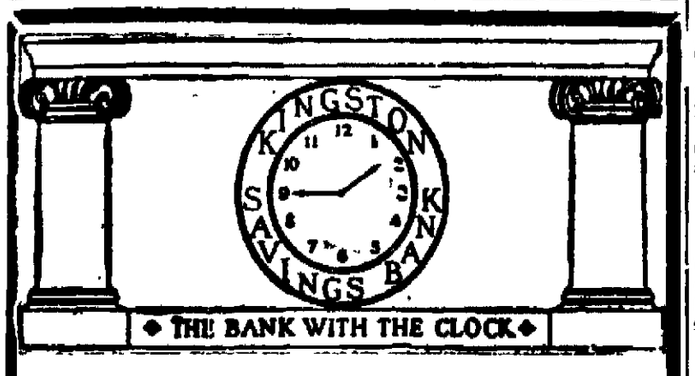
Knowledge of Connection

The knowledge of connection dates back to remote antiquity, and their annals comprise the history of the fairy, history and extravagance of past ages. The number of simple and compound calculations employed in professions is inestimable and almost unknown, and the books written by Egyptians, Greeks and Romans on this subject almost constituted a library in themselves.



Lest We Forget

Gun Toter Held For Grand Jury

William Terry, a negro, was arrested Monday evening at Dwyer's brickyard by Donat Roux, a foreman on the yard, who charged the negro with having a revolver in his possession and flourishing it on the yard.

This morning the negro was arraigned before Judge Shufeldt in police court and acknowledged that he had the revolver, but as the crime could not be disposed of in police court a plea of not guilty was entered in behalf of the negro, and he was held to await the action of the grand jury. Bail was fixed at $500 and in default of it the negro was remanded to the county jail.

Award Prize for Y. W. C. A. Song

Some time ago Rear Admiral Francis J. Higginson offered a prize of $20 for the best Y. W. C. A. song for the Kingston Y. W. The judges were to be Miss Virginia Lee Kamp, Harry P. Funeral from the family home, 20 Abbey street, time to be announced later.

Financial and Commercial

New York, May 25.—The forward movement in stock prices today was confined to a small number of the speculative leaders in the oil, traction and specialty groups. The tobacco stocks continued the rally which has been in progress for about a week; the utility stocks made moderate gains in fairly active trading; the tire and rubber stocks recovered some of their lost ground, and a few of the railroad shares made an effort to join the procession. Elsewhere the market was dul land heavy, with motor stocks in disfavor, for the time being at least.

Pan American Petroleum led the movement in the oil stocks, with Marland, Sinclair, Simms Phillips, Independent, Pure Oil, Texas Company and Mid Continent participating.

International Combustion Engineering was the outstanding performer in the specialty stocks, its advance to 52 representing a gain of nearly 10 points in a week. Gotham Hosiery, Wright Aeronautical and Congoleum were strong. United Cigar Stores, in the lead of the tobacco stocks sold up about 3 points at 95½, while the stocks of the American Tobacco Company and various cigar manufacturing companies were strong and active.

Eruptions Cause Lake to Overflow, Many Drowned

Earthquake From Mount Tokachi Caused a Mountain Lake to Break Its Embankment Wiping Out Hamlets—Two Hundred Reported Drowned, Thousands Missing.

Tokyo, May 25.—Fifty persons are dead and 200 homes have been destroyed by an eruption of Mount Tokachi, according to an official communique issued by the governor of Hokkaido prefecture in which the disaster occurred.

The communique admitted, however, that the casualties were likely to increase as more detailed reports were received. Dispatches from the scene to the Asahai here said 150 were dead and other vernacular papers estimate the dead much higher.

Many who are reported missing are probably safe, according to advices received here.

The eruption of Mount Tokachi occurred Sunday afternoon.

The volcanic action was apparently inconsequential but caused a mountain lake to break its embankments.

Hamlets Wiped Out.

A fifty-foot wall of water swept down and wiped out hamlets, farms and Tomiranomura Village was entirely destroyed.

It was estimated that 2,000 refugees had been driven to the hills.

Maruyama Hot Springs, a famous resort, was flooded and four bathers drowned.

The Biyei Farm, famous all over Japan, was destroyed and much live stock lost.

The crop damage throughout the stricken district will be large.

Japanese troops have been sent from Sapparo to the scene of the disaster to rescue the marooned and carry relief to the homeless.

200 Drowned, 2,000 Missing.

London, May 25.—Two hundred persons have been drowned, 2,000 are still missing and hundreds of houses have been obliterated by an earthquake from Mt. Tokachi in Northern Hokkaido, according to a dispatch from Hokkaido, Japan, today.

Two distinct eruptions occurred, the second taking place at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. They came without warning. The Tokachi Range is 8,200 feet above sea level and the speed and fury of the lava flow was such as to sweep all before it into waters of the Sea of Okhotsk, which lies at the northern base of the mountain.

Lava Flow Hampers Rescuers.

Rescue parties, coming from other parts of Hokkaido, known popularly as Yezo, have thus far been unable to get near enough to search for the missing. They are badly hampered by the lava flow and the fumes, which are still rising in clouds from the crater.

The slopes of Tokachi were thickly populated. Among the missing are hundreds of fishermen whose homes were situated directly in the path of the lava rush.

Hokkaido, more commonly known as Yezo, is an island in the Japanese Archipelago having an area of 30,340 square miles and a population of 1,817,700.

The Tokachi Range reaches its highest point in Mount Tokachi, which has an altitude of 8,200 feet. The slopes of the mountain and the valley at its base are thickly populated.

Coolidge Defends His Dry Order

Says Order is Perfectly Legal, But Would Be Modified if Found to be Oppressive—No Question of State Sovereignty.

Washington, May 25.—President Coolidge today strongly defended the executive order which permits the employment of state, county and municipal officials as federal dry agents.

He told callers the order, which he signed upon recommendation of the treasury, was perfectly legal. He added, however, that the order would not be applied generally, or used oppressively.

If it is found that the order becomes oppressive, the White House spokesman declared it would be modified.

Mr. Coolidge was nettled by the cyclonic criticism which met the order. Wets and drys alike, in and out of congress, have criticized the order as illegal. They said it was a violation of state's rights.

The president's spokesman declared he could see no foundation whatever for charges that the order violated state sovereignty.

So far as prohibition is concerned, it was said that there was no question of state sovereignty involved.

The President pointed out to visitors that the American people called for concurrent enforcement of the dry law by ratifying the eighteenth Amendment.

In this connection, the spokesman said that if a person were invited upon a premises that person could not be called a trespasser.

By the same token, he held, the federal government could not be called a trespasser on the states in enforcing the prohibition amendment.

101 Ranch Wild West on June 9

The circus season will be opened in Kingston on Wednesday, June 9, at the Kingston Fair Grounds when the 101 Ranch Wild West Show will play in this city.

Advertising car No. 1 with a crew of thirty men was in Kingston today making preliminary posting on the billboards and arrangements for the circus. The other advertising cars will follow along at regular intervals.

This is the first wild west show to play Kingston in ten years. The show is featuring a mammoth street parade, which is being omitted by circuses throughout the country. The street parade this year will be bigger and better than ever.

Society Notes

VanWagenen-Shelley.

Merritt Van Wagenen of Railroad avenue and Mrs. Anna Shelley of No 136 Prospect street were united in marriage on May 22 by Judge Augustus Shufeldt.

Baldwin-Welch.

James T. Baldwin of Tupelo, Miss., and Miss Rae Welch of Bridgeville, Del., were married on Sunday by the Rev. W. F. Hersh, of the Saugerties Lutheran Church. The bride is a pianist at the Orpheum Theatre in Saugerties.

Legg-Osterhoudt.

Mrs. James Osterhoudt of 156 Fair street, wishes to announce the marriage of her daughter, Hazel, to Howard M. Legg of 225 Smith avenue on May 22, at the home of the Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley. They were attended by the bride's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Osterhoudt of Kerhonkson.

Taylor-Wolven.

Lillian T. Wolven was united in marriage Monday afternoon, May 24, at the rectory of the St. James M. E. Church at 4 o'clock to Ulysses G. Taylor. The Rev. J. W. Tetley, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony. The attendants were Raymond Woerner and Mildred Ambruster. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. L. Saulpaugh, 21 Henry street. The newly married couple will make their home at 139 O'Neil street.

A Double Surprise Party.

A double surprise party was rendered by the Misses Elsie and Mildred Wagner at their home in Lincoln Park last Saturday evening. One of the most pleasing events of the evening was the popular and old-time selections played on a ukulele by John Carpenter. A clarinet solo was given by Walter Bundy. Refreshments were served at midnight after which dancing was enjoyed by all. The following were present: Elsie Wagner, Mildred Wagner, Margaret Covert, Anna Covert, Gertrude Bundy, Hazel Bundy, Millie Ostrander and Marion Pratt, John Carpenter, Charles Lay, Herbert Finger, Dale Auchmoody, Alvin Auchmoody, Gordon Pratt, Esselstyn Rugar and Walter Bundy.

Celebrate Golden Wedding.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Lothrop Gray, 33 Prospect street, was the scene of a happy golden wedding surprise Monday as they were united in marriage at Eddyville half a century ago, on May 24, 1876. The official board of the St. James M. E. Church presented Mr. and Mrs. Gray with a purse of gold in the evening, and this was followed by a purse of gold from the teachers and officers of the Sunday school, and a purse also from the T. T. T. Class and one from the Sunday school class of Miss Lucy Berryann. There were also beautiful bouquets of flowers and other remembrances. A few relatives and friends, among them the Rev. J. W. Tetley, pastor of the St. James M. E. Church, came and extended their congratulations. Mr. Gray has been employed continuously for the past 33 years at the machine shops now of the Ulster Foundry Corporation, on St. James street.

P.-T. A. of School No. 6.

The members of the Parent-Teacher Association of School No. 6 attended the opening exercises this morning at the school at which time E. Everett Fennenden of the Fennenden Shirt Company spoke to the pupils on the value of education in business.

Shaping Ships for Speed

One of the wonders of modern science is the ability to accurately estimate the time that will be taken by a ship on her maiden voyage from Great Britain to New York, or vice versa. The plan adopted by the builders of one of the largest Atlantic greyhounds was to make a small wax model of the boat, according to the preliminary designs of the hull. The model was floated in a tank 400 feet long and 20 feet wide, and was then drawn through the water at a rate proportionate to the designed speed of the ship. Intricate and delicate recording instruments noted the resistance of the water, and slight alterations in the shape of the wax model were made until the water resistance was as small as possible. In a recent case 387 experiments were necessary before the ideal shape was given to the hull and the best size found for the propellers.

Men Who Reached Top

To achieve what the world calls success a man must attend strictly to business and keep a little in advance of the times. The man who reaches the top is the one who is not content with doing just what is required of him—he does more.—E. H. Harriman.

Suitably Appropriate

We believe that if a woman were told she was wanted in heaven to receive salvation, she would take a look in the mirror and dab some more powder on her nose.—Jacksonville Times Union.

The TALE of KIDDIE KATYDID

By Arthur Scott Bailey

THE TWO GRASSHOPPERS

KIDDIE KATYDID had a neighbor who was a good deal like him. Indeed, a careless person had to look sharply to discover much difference between them. But there was a difference. There was, especially, a certain way in which one could always tell them apart. One had only to take the trouble to look at their horns—or feelers. For Kiddie Katydid had horns as long—or longer—than he was. But his neighbor, who was known as Leaper the Locust, wore his horns quite short.

"I'm Tempted to Move Away," Leaper Began to Tell Every One.

Although they saw each other often, Kiddie and this neighbor of his were not on the best of terms. The trouble was simply this: they couldn't agree on the question of horns. Whenever they met they were sure to have a most unpleasant dispute before they parted.

Really, their quarrels were as bad as those that Jimmy Rabbit and Frisky Squirrel once had over the matter of tails. And many of the field folk said it was a shame that the Grasshoppers' trouble couldn't be settled somehow.

Strange as it may seem, that remark always made Leaper the Locust terribly angry. And it enraged Kiddie Katydid as did nothing else.

The difficulty was that the field people—as well as Farmer Green's whole family—had fallen into the lazy habit of calling those two by the same name. They spoke of Kiddie Katydid as "the Long-Horned Grasshopper," while they termed his neighbor "the Short-Horned Grasshopper."

"It's bad enough to look somewhat like Leaper the Locust, without being tagged with the name of Grasshopper, along with him," Kiddie Katydid spluttered.

"Honestly, I'm tempted to move away from this neighborhood," Leaper the Locust began to tell every one he met. "If that chap would only trim his horns to the proper length I wouldn't mind it so much. But he's actually proud of them. He's always waving them over his head, so people will notice them."

They both declared—Kiddie Katydid and Leaper the Locust—that they couldn't abide the name "Grasshopper." And they took pains to warn people in the neighborhood that they wouldn't answer to that name, no matter how loudly any one might shout it at them.

After that a few of their neighbors took great delight in crying "Grasshopper! Grasshopper!" whenever one of the two happened to be within hearing. But no matter which of them it might be—whether Leaper the Locust or Kiddie Katydid—he pretended not to hear, and went right on eating.

But at last something happened that made both those jumpy gentlemen change their minds. From not wanting to be called Grasshoppers, they decided suddenly that they liked the name. And each claimed that the other had no right to it.

This odd state of affairs arose when they learned that a stranger had come into the valley bearing a message marked "For Mr. Grasshopper."

"That's for me!" Kiddie Katydid cried, as soon as he heard the news.

"You're mistaken!" Leaper the Locust snapped. "The message is clearly intended for me. And I shan't let anybody else open it."

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

THE HAIR AND THE MOON

CUT your hair "in the new moon," if you wish it to grow well. This superstition is general all over the United States and Canada, and is but another example of the survival of the most ancient cult of luna worship.

It is the same survival of a primitive idea which makes some farmers of today, who would scout the idea that they were superstitious, plant everything except tubers, on the increase of the moon. All folklore and all mythology testify to the vital relation which a person's hair bore in the estimation of our ancestors to the person himself, as well as to the spiritual relation which subsisted through it between the human being and the gods.

Several of the distinguished scientists of ancient Rome wrote of the matter as of something not to be doubted. Now, if, when the hair is cut, the moon, symbol of the great moon-goddess Isis, prototype of all the moon-goddesses, is waxing as the operation takes place, by the doctrine of luna sympathy, the hair, also will wax and grow again, thick and luxuriant. Whereas, if you cut your hair on a waning moon, you stand a risk of becoming bald-headed, through this same luna sympathy—the hair being especially susceptible to the influence of the gods.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"LIKE PHAETON"

FREQUENTLY in literature or speech of a rhetorical nature we come across an expression like this: "He is another Phaeton and will certainly be struck down," or "He is overconfident. He will overreach himself, it is a Phaetonlike ambition which he cannot fulfill." The reference is always to an undertaking that is far beyond the powers of a person who insists upon attempting it.

The expression comes to us from the pages of Greek mythology where Phaeton was a mortal whose mother told him that his father was Phoebus, the Sun god. Piqued by doubt, he asked proof of his heavenly birth and his mother sent him to the East to the palace of the Sun to make inquiries. There, on his throne, Phoebus acknowledged Phaeton was his son, and to prove his parentage offered to fulfill any wish that he might express.

On learning that Phaeton's desire was to drive the chariot of the Sun which gave light and heat to the world, Phoebus exhorted him to change his wish. None but he, the Sun god, he told him, could take the perilous drive without mishap. Phaeton, however, insisted, but hardly had the fiery steeds dashed with the chariot through his father's gates than they took him headlong over the course, scorching the heavens and the earth. The world, the legend tells us, would have been set on fire and entirely destroyed had not Jupiter struck the chariot with a thunderbolt which destroyed it and then hurled the gallant but overambitious Phaeton out of existence!

Man and Wife Seek Damages

Two actions for personal injuries were taken up for trial in the Supreme court this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Liebers of Dairyland, town of Wawarsing, seek to recover damages from Morris Reiter, claiming they were injured in a motor accident on the Ellenville-Greenfield road in September, 1923. The accident happened at the end of a narrow bridge on the road. Plaintiff claims his car had about crossed the bridge when the car of the defendant struck him. Isadore Rothenberg appears for plaintiff and Assistant District Attorney Cleon B. Murray and District Attorney Frederick G. Traver appear for the defendant.

Plumbers' Strike Still in Force

The plumbers' strike which went into effect in Kingston the first of the month is still in force with no sign of a settlement in sight. The plumbers are striking for a $9 day. They were getting an $8 day. The master plumbers of the city held a meeting at the city hall Monday evening but no action was taken. They will hold another meeting, it is said, next Tuesday.

Odds and Ends

The ladies of Circle No. 3 of the First Presbyterian Church will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Shaw at her home, 73 Washington avenue.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Frederick W. Bender died at his home in Cottekill on Monday, aged 69 years. Funeral from the late residence Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock daylight saving time. Interment in Marbletown cemetery.

Edward M. Balfe died at the home of Edward Roarke at Fish Creek on Sunday. Deceased was a son of the late Edward and Mary Balfe and was in his forty-second year. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Charles Scott, of Brooklyn, and four brothers, Frank, Marry, Thomas and John Balfe.

James Albertson of Marlborough died at his home there on Sunday afternoon after a brief illness of bronchitis and grip complicated by heart trouble. Mrs. Albertson is critically ill and under the care of Miss Johnston, a nurse. The arrangements for the funeral have not been made.

Elias G. Van Nostrand died Monday at his home in Tillson in his seventy-seventh year. Funeral Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock daylight saving time from the Reformed Church at Tillson, with interment in Rosendale cemetery. Besides his wife he is survived by two sons, Elias and Lewis of Tillson; two daughters, Mrs. Peter E. Deyo of Tillson and Mrs. David S. Bench of Rhinebeck, and three brothers, Frank of Plutarch, Lewis of Tillson and Nelson Van Nostrand of this city.

The services at the funeral of Mrs. Bridget Fitzgerald held Monday morning at 9 o'clock at the late residence, Albany avenue, and later at St. Joseph's Church were largely attended. A solemn high Mass of requiem was celebrated, the Rev. Eugene A. Duggan officiating. There were many floral offerings. The rosary was recited at the home on Sunday evening by the Rev. Fathers Duggan and Osterman. The bearers were James V. Simpson, E. Flanagan, Joseph Mooney and Peter Crough. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Sanford Abrams, well known and highly respected resident of Walden, died in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank D. Fuller in Springfield, Mass., on Sunday evening, aged 65 years. He was born in Marbletown but had spent a good share of his life in Walden where for a number of years he conducted a grocery store. For years he was interested in the Schenck Knife factory and the Rider Ericsson Engine Company. He served Walden as a water commissioner and as a member of the board of education. He had been a very active member of the Walden Reformed Church for years. He is survived by one son, Alfred Abrams of Walden, and one daughter, Jessie, wife of Frank D. Fuller of Springfield, and one brother, T. B. Abrams of Springfield. Funeral services were held today with interment in the Wallkill Valley cemetery.

Despatches From Foreign Parts

Peking, May 25.—Upon advices from Paris that the Chinese legation there has neither cash nor credit and is facing complete bankruptcy, the foreign office has sought permission to float a loan of $50,000 through a Paris bank to prevent the legation from being closed by its creditors.

Paris, May 25.—Desirous of achieving a greater celebrity for their culinary works of art, the more exclusive French cooks are now demanding that they be permitted to sign their work, just as a painter autographs his canvases and a writer the children of his brain.

Budapest, May 25.—Impoverished Hungarian aristocrats, feeling the pinch of poverty and the general hard times that have overtaken their class, have turned to the muse for succor and not a few of them are receiving fat sums for writing poems for radical political parties glorifying socialism and its institutions.

London, May 25.—Because surgical boots did not cure quickly enough the rickety legs of the young pigmy elephant at the London Zoo, this rare little beast—the only one of its kind in the British Isles—is now receiving a daily treatment with ultra-violet rays.

Bucharest, May 25.—At the age of 112 years, a peasant of Unijara, named Jyula, has learned that too much talking is the foe of successful revolution. He has just been arrested for plotting against the government and disturbing the peace, the evidence upon which he was taken being his own conversation as overheard by detectives.

London, May 25.—The engagement of Miss Marguerite Christine Bahnsen, daughter of Christian Bahnsen of Passaic, N. J., and the Hon. Richard Dawsey Elder, son of Viscount Downe, is reported by the Daily Graphic today.

Floral Tributes to World War Dead

Memorial Day will be observed in Kingston and throughout the country next Monday, May 31, since May 30 falls on Sunday.

On next Monday all flags should be displayed in the morning at half-mast until noon, and at the peak the rest of the day until sunset.

On that day, following its annual custom, Kingston Post of the American Legion will decorate the graves of all World-War dead.

Relatives of those whose graves are overseas are invited by the American Legion to place flowers on the Memorial Tablet in the American Legion Memorial Building. Part of this memorial tablet consists of a beautiful console table, which was designed especially for that purpose.

Since the completion of the American Legion Memorial Building, this memorial tablet has held the floral offerings of remembrance of many bereaved relatives. Such offerings are welcome throughout the year, but especially so on Memorial Day.

Flowers and wreaths may be sent, or may be brought personally. The American Legion Memorial Building is opened each day at noon.

Riffian Tribes Are Yielding

And There May Be An Early End To The Moroccan War—Abd-El-Krim Fleeing to the North.

Paris, May 25.—"Abd-El-Krim is in flight" and France will not negotiate peace with him, Premier Briand announced today, following a cabinet meeting, under the chairmanship of President Doumergue.

"Abd-El-Krim is in flight and reprecents nothing," said the premier. "We can't negotiate with him."

"We will negotiate with the tribes which are still revolting."

A cabinet communique predicted that there may be an early end to the Moroccan War, now that Abd-El-Krim is in flight and many tribes continue to submit.

The cabinet received a full report on Abd-El-Krim's letter to President General Steeg, opening the way for peace, and also had a report on the rapid military successes which the French are registering.

War Minister Painleve stated that the losses in the recent French advances were extremely light.

The cabinet issued the following communique:

"Abd-El-Krim's letter to General Steeg lacks precision and guarantees.

"The authorities cannot modify the present conduct of operations.

"A cessation of operations under the actual circumstances would have the consequences of retarding and making more costly, rather than facilitating, the Moroccan pacification.

"Submission of the Riffian Tribes continues so rapidly that the end may be expected soon. This impression is confirmed by the recent communication of Abd-El-Krim, who is believed to be fleeing to the north."

30 Killed in Train Collision

Munich, May 25.—Thirty persons were killed and twenty-seven seriously injured today when a train arriving at the Central Station here crashed into a special holiday train, wrecking several coaches filled with picnickers. Many other passengers are suffering from minor injuries.

The accident was caused, it is believed, by a mistake in signals.

The engineer of the incoming train, going at a good rate of speed, was unable to apply the brakes in time. The locomotive demolished the rear coach, which was telescoped into the coaches ahead.

Practically all of the deaths occurred in the last coach.

Seven Seriously Hurt.

Granada, Spain, May 25.—Seven passengers were seriously injured, probably fatally, when a train from Murcia jumped its rails near here today.

The derailment caused the boiler of the engine to explode, many of the fragments striking the passengers.

"BARON" CHARGED WITH SWINDLING 49 WIVES

New York, May 25.—New York authorities were preparing today to extradite the alleged "Baron Beaverbrook," charged with swindling forty-nine wives of sums totaling $1,000,000, held without bail in Philadelphia.

The "Baron" was quite a light in the night life of Broadway. He also was mentioned in police reports in Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, San Francisco and London.

The bogus baron is said to have as many aliases as wives during his career, and twice as many disguises.

Police throughout the country have been pursuing the "Baron's" shadow for more than a year. Mrs. Ray Burken, of New York, his last victim, charged he swindled her out of $125,000 in jewelry.

William A. Ruenzler, one of the New York Edison Company managers, turned amateur detective, and after a trailing expedition in Atlantic City, N. J., caused the arrest of the baron. "Beaverbrook" is held in Philadelphia on a $60,000 grand larceny charge.

RIFFIANS ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE ABD-EL-KRIM

Madrid, May 25.—Abd-El-Krim is being menaced by his own people, according to reports received here.

Riffians attempted to assassinate Abd-El-Krim by hurling a bomb at him while he was engaged in telephoning, it is reported. This effort having failed an attempt was made to kidnap him.

Abd-El-Krim's house at Tamsint is reported to have been pillaged and burned and attacks have been made on his quarters elsewhere.

LANKISHEY HAS NO BOARDING HOUSE

The fire which broke out in the apartments of John Morton, No. 63 Murray street, on Sunday morning, was in a building owned by Louis Lankishey, but not in a boarding house, as stated in The Freeman on Monday. Mr. Lankishey neither owns nor operates a boarding house and never has done so.

A verdict for Plaintiff Mary M. Hauck against the city of Kingston, defendant, in the sum of $230 was returned Monday afternoon in the negligence action tried in Supreme court to recover damages for a fall on an icy walk in front of the city hall entrance. Judge Jenkins, corporation counsel, moved to set aside the verdict as excessive, contrary to the law and the evidence. Judge Losch reserved decision.

Aldermen Pay Tribute to Smith

Met Monday Evening to Adopt Resolutions of Respect in Memory of Alderman Smith, Who Died Saturday—Attended Funeral in a Body.

The common council met in special session at the city hall Monday evening to adopt resolutions of respect to the memory of Alderman William G. Smith of the Twelfth ward, who died suddenly at his home on Saturday of acute indigestion. At the close of the special session the members of the council together with Mayor Morris Block and Corporation Counsel James Jenkins adjourned to the home of Alderman Smith to pay their last respects in person. This afternoon the common council attended the funeral services of the late alderman in a body.

The resolutions adopted Monday evening were offered by Alderman DeGarmo, and were adopted by a rising vote. They read as follows:

It is with profound sorrow that the members of the common council of the City of Kingston, New York announce the death of William G. Smith, Alderman from the Twelfth ward, a gentleman for whom this council entertained the highest respect and deepest affection.

He was a good citizen; a good official and a loyal friend; a man of the highest personal character, with lofty ideals of public service, and of the most exemplary and industrious habits; courteous and considerate in his dealings with his fellow men; honorable and upright—he was a fine type of American citizenship.

Resolved, that the clerk be requested to enter this memorandum in full upon the minutes; that a copy attested by the clerk, be forwarded to the members of Mr. Smith's family, and that the common council attend his funeral in a body.

BLOOMINGTON HAS BIG DAY WITH EVANGELIST

The old Bloomington Reformed Church at Bloomington is having a rare experience for a modern church. An old fashioned revival is in progress. One is reminded of the days of Wright F. Moody. There was a good attendance Sunday morning. Some people were in attendance from some distance, coming from Philmont, N. Y., on purpose to attend the services of Saturday night and Sunday morning. Others were present from Kingston and Rosendale.

On Sunday evening the old church was nearly filled with a crowd of seekers after God, from Bloomington, Eddyville, Kingston and Tillson, a large bus-load coming from the latter place. Both morning and evening services were enthusiastic and inspiring.

Evangelist L. C. Roble is making good his reputation as a "Man of God," and a "Preacher of Righteousness." There was a goodly response to the altar call, given at both services on Sunday. The meetings will continue all through the week, every evening. These services begin at 8 o'clock, daylight saving time.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(© 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

A true patriot is the man who can eat an imitation beefsteak, with a smile on his face, and tell the woman who prepared it that it is as good as the real thing.—Mrs. Burnett-Smith.

VEGETABLES AND THINGS

Here is a stew that will be a new one to many and worth trying:

New Stew.—Cut into inch-pieces one and one-half pounds from the round. Dredge with two tablespoonfuls of flour that has been well mixed with two teaspoonfuls of salt and one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper. Brown the meat in two tablespoonfuls of fat in the kettle in which the stew is to cook. Stir often to avoid burning. Add two cupfuls of tomatoes, twelve small onions, four medium-sized carrots cut to simulate small ones, two cupfuls each of diced turnip and celery and one cupful of shredded string beans, freshly cooked or canned. Add two cupfuls of boiling water, two teaspoonfuls of salt; cover and simmer until all the ingredients are tender—about two hours. One-half hour before serving add eight small potatoes, and ten minutes before serving add one and one-half cupfuls of canned corn. Serve very hot.

Spinach Masked With Eggs.—Steam two quarts of spinach which has been well washed. Drain and chop, season with one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of sugar, a tablespoonful of butter and one cupful of thick white sauce. Place the spinach in a buttered dish, cover the top with three hard-cooked eggs sliced or quartered, and pour over the white sauce. Sprinkle the top with one-half cupful of grated cheese and bake twelve minutes in a hot oven.

Beef Collops.—Put a tablespoonful of butter into a frying pan; add one small onion chopped fine, a teaspoonful of finely minced parsley, the same of salt, and a few dashes of pepper. Stir in one teaspoonful of flour and one pound of chopped beef. Cook five minutes, stirring constantly; serve on hot buttered toast. The meat may be formed into balls before cooking and placed on the buttered toast with the gravy from the pan poured over them.

Cauliflower or cabbage cooked whole, and served with a white sauce in which a cupful of snappy cheese has been melted, is another tasty dish.

HOWE ABOUT—

By ED HOWE

(Copyright by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

A surprising and distressing thing is the great number of young men engaged in outlawry. The papers are full of burglaries and holdups committed by young men ranging in age from eighteen to twenty-two. . . . There is a way to at least partially stop this disgraceful state of affairs. Enforce the law against vagrancy. The vagrancy law is still on the books everywhere. Wherever a young man is found who has no visible means of support, let him be arrested for vagrancy. If he is not a thief, he is at least imposing cruelly on parents or other relatives. In all the arrests being made for outlawry by young men, not one case has been discovered where the thief had a job; everywhere these crimes are being committed by men who hang around pool halls, soda-water counters, or otherwise show the marks of loafers.

A woman at the head of a child welfare organization writes me: "I am truly discouraged. The flapper doesn't discourage me, but her mother does." . . . I have never known parents who were not constantly trying to bring up their children properly. . . . My correspondent says she knows many parents who make no effort to train children at home to be truthful, honest and clean minded. . . . I have known no such parents; I do not believe any such exist. All parents I have known, and particularly mothers, have worried and scolded because of fear their children and grandchildren will not be honest, truthful and clean minded. A universal charge against parents, by children, is that they are nuisances because of constant preaching.

I lately attended a horse race, and soon noted that although I frequently bought a two-dollar ticket, I never won anything. I noted, also, that some New York gentlemen present had a habit of buying tickets, and presenting them to the ladies: It seemed a new form of gallantry. So when a lady acquaintance came into our box, just as a race was starting, I bowed politely, and begged the honor of presenting her with a ticket. . . . In about two minutes, the ticket I had given away, believing it would not win anything, won thirty-eight dollars.

So far as I am a critic of literature, it is in selecting my own reading. . . . I read books from hearing them talked about by ordinary men like myself. Some stand out above praise, the others always being greater than the praise; and finally I wish to have a look for myself. A man who knows literature well may recommend a volume highly, and I despise it.

Pilsudski Reform Program Opposed

by the Posen Faction Which Threatens to Adopt Obstructionist Measures—Dictatorial Powers For Next President Is Threat.

Warsaw, May 25.—The Bartel government today issued a proclamation declaring that it will bestow dictatorial powers on the next president of Poland, if the parliament offers any obstacles to his carrying out a reform program.

The proclamation declared that the government is willing to carry out a reform program in cooperation with the Sejm, but if there is obstruction that dictatorial powers will be given the next president.

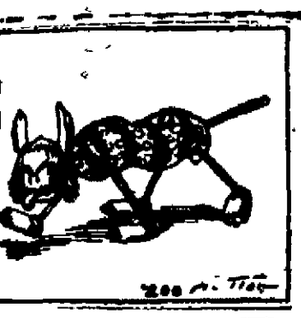
The government's proclamation is regarded in effect as an ultimatum to the Posen faction which is threatening to adopt obstructionist measures in the Sejm.

Marshal Pilsudski, who anticipates being elected president in the elections next week, has announced that he will seek reforms and will ask for the dissolution of the parliament. The Posen faction has threatened to oppose the dissolution and to also raise obstacles to the proposed reforms of Marshal Pilsudski.

While the Pilsudski adherents maintain that they are certain of electing their candidate, there is still a considerable amount of opposition to him. One report is to the effect that the Posen Nationalists have offered not to oppose any candidate for the presidency from the right, providing this candidate is not Pilsudski. They have been reported as willing to withdraw their threats of obstruction if the candidacy of Pilsudski is withdrawn. The government proclamation today appears to be the answer to this threat.

Nutty Natural History

By BUGS BUTLER.



THE BURMESE TAGGER.

A few remaining individuals of this fast-vanishing tribe are still to be found among the dense growths of whiffle trees on the uplands back of Mandalay. In spite of their resemblance to the man-eating tiger, they are quite harmless, and feed only on doodle-berries and the rinds of pagodas. Their name is derived from their habit of tagging along behind the natives in hopes of picking up a pagoda or two that might be thrown away. The taggers were considered quite useless until a few years ago when quite a business sprang up of collecting the coats of defunct taggers and shipping them to Perth Amboy, where they are made into Navajo blankets for the Arizona Indians.

A high grade of automobile paint is necessary for painting the stripes on the creature, but aside from this the materials are easily obtainable. The peanut body, filbert head, split peanut feet and ears, and toothpick legs and tail should be in every household. Popcorn is used for the nose, and the sideburns are two halves of a small chicken feather.

PLATTEKILL.

Plattekill, May 25.—C. W. Kittle of Casper, Wyoming, spent a few days visiting relatives and friends in this section. He was called home on account of the illness of his father, Walter Kittle, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Everett, of Plattekill.

Salesmanship Plus

At the motor show the salesman was endeavoring to interest a girl in a new little two-seater on the stand. "Has it got every modern improvement?" she inquired. "Everything, madam," he responded gallantly; "the only thing it lacks is a beautiful own-er." He said it.—Youth's Companion.

INTERVIEW WITH CHRISTOPHER WARD

(By Christopher Ward.)

I found Christopher Ward plowing one of the fields of his 10,000 acre ranch in the mountains of northern Delaware. A tall rangy man of uncertain age and temper, his broad shoulders bowed by age and sorrows, he is, indeed, a fine specimen of our fast vanishing stock of hardy pioneers. A patriarchal beard concealed many of his features.

"Are you Christopher Ward?" I asked

"Yes," said he, eyeing me keenly. "Are you?"

"I am," I answered.

"Alas," said he brushing from his broad forehead the dust of centuries. "Ain't that terrible!" His black eyes gleamed defiance. "Perhaps you would like to examine my beard", he added, handing it to me courteously. "It is a genuine antique—formerly Brigham Young's—I got it from a member of his family for a mere song. You wouldn't believe how more. 'Annie Laurie', it was."

"That team, now" he continued, pointing to the plow-horses. "Well bred. Part Arab and part horse—but I'm not sure which part. A spanking pair of boys, they are. Would you like to see them spank? No? Isn't that sad?"

The snow was eddying around us in eddies.

"Do you usually plow in the snow?" I asked.

"Why not?" he asked studiously. "Isn't it done? I thought it might get the agricultural vote. Ought I to be plowing hay? My God! Shim, I haven't any. Not a single hay. I told the florist to send up two dozen of the very best hays, and they haven't come. But I've got a good run-button", he added hopefully. "Will that do?"

He wiped the sweat of agony from his brow with his horny hand and dried it on the hair of the off horse.

"The old justifies the means", he said slowly. "Come we'll have tea on the lawn."

Stretched in a long wicker chair, his slender legs encased in white flannels, with a pipe in his hand, he issued the pleasure of the English novelist.

"How old are you?"

A deep shadow swept on his countenance as he found the interrupter. His finger nervously felt the trigger of his six-gun.

"Yes" he said at length, in measured tones.

"Were you ever educated?"

"Well, hardly ever. I mean, not frequently. Once or twice, perhaps." The man seemed to be brooding over some fancied wrong. His blue eyes met mine with perfect frankness.

"I did graduate—or was graduated—have it your own way", he moodily continued. "At Williams College—there she stands—and at Harvard Law School—there she stands. But that doesn't count, does it?" he asked anxiously. "It was such a little one—and I was so young. Besides," he added defiantly, "it's barred by the Statute of Limitation".

"Have you ever practiced law?"

"Oh yes, yes", he replied, airily. "For the last 28 years. You notice I say 'last'. That's important. 'Law'", he added reminiscently "Strange how a word like that sticks in one's memory. I suppose it is a relic of a previous existence."

"Where were you born?

"No!" he thundered. He let go the steering-wheel in his excitement. The car swerved to the right, crashed into a rugged gnarled old rose bush. We were both instantly killed.

"What are your politics?"

The deep boom of the surf on a lee shore resounded in our ears. He shifted his quid, took a reef in his trousers and leading lazily on the tiller said:

"Tuesday, isn't it? Oh, then Republican—also Democrat with Prohibitionist tendencies. I am strong for the Volstead Act—too strong, I may say. Will you have Scotch or rye? I am also," he added, "a K. K. K., a Knight of Columbus and a member of the Sons and Daughters of I Will Arise."

His strongly marked African features broke into a wide-mouthed grin.

"Yes, sah! Yes, sah! Dem's my sentiments," he said. "And I may add my great-grandfather spoke Yiddish."

"Have you a family?"

A spasm of fear passed over his face before overwhelmed. He grasped wildly, as with a free swing he made the 19th hole to win.

"A family!" his eye flashed with wrath, as he mounted his horse. "I believe so. But it's strange I've not yet me on that subject."

"Will you tell me about your books?"

"My books Ah, my books!" He sprang from his chair, paced to and fro in agitation, while his pet dog affectionately licked his boots. His features worked nervously. His Celtic origin was writ large on his expressive face.

"There they are," he murmured softly, as with a wide gesture of defiance he indicated the full shelves walling his library. "Look at them! Is there anything there to be ashamed of, Got wot?"

"Which do you like best?"

"That depends," he whispered huskily. "Gibbon's Rome makes an excellent custard, but Grote's Greece is best for the hives. I think highly of those on the top-shelf—Laura Jean Libbey and the Koran. Excuse me a moment, I must call my secretary."

He touched one of a battery of buttons on the top of the broad mahogany desk

"Miss Fetherbridge, if the laundryman calls tell him I'm in conference—got a big deal on. Now, sir," turning to me, "please state your business briefly."

"Have you ever written any books yourself?"

"Ah!" he exclaimed, his boyish features lighting up as he brushed back his curling blond hair impatiently. "You've said something: I'll tell the mystic universe: 'Triumph of the Nut', 'Twisted Tales', 'Foolish Fiction' and 'Gentleman Into Goose'. That makes four," he added, as he took another speckled beauty from his hook and dropped it in the bottom of the boat.

"They're for sale in all bookstores," he continued reluctantly, "at prices according to quality. Both republican papers please copy."

"Is that all?"

The man's drawn white features twitched nervously under the glare of the electric light as he stared into the grim face of the ruthless interviewer of the Fallen. His tongue licked his dry lips.

"No, that isn't all," he said hotly. "I'll tell you the truth, such as it is, damn it. Interview, hell, why God! I'll tell my wife, she's had enough to say about it. She's the one responsible for this whole—" He choked with rage. His face was purple. He made a move for his six-gun. He was gone.

In "One Little Man," published by Harpers—attractively printed and bound. Sound! Do you get that?" he cried fiercely. "Sound! Not everyone can say that—dumb everyone can say that—dumb people, for instance," he added meditatively. "And the price! Oh, my God! The price! Only—only $2.50—postpaid—cut in a sealed plain wrapper, guaranteed for 10 days unless or your money refunded. Take it or it! Only two and a half bucks—for all God!"

"What first turned you to literature?"

The words fell from his stiffened lips. His lips were bloodless as he sprang to his feet, upsetting the table and sending the dice flying in every direction. He grasped the shoulders of the crouching Malay.

"Who told you to ask me that?" he croaked hoarsely. "Who are you, woman? Are you Harold Peters?—or didn't they? Answer me yes or no!"

"Will you give me your views on the Modern Novel?"

"Gladly" he answered, with childish simplicity. "The Modern Novel, as I understand it, Mr. Toastmaster and gentlemen—and I hope you will correct me, if I am wrong—as I once said to a friend of mine—who's long since dead—or so, at least, the undertaker assured me, though I never could trust the man. He had a bad eye. Still, he lived in Cheltenham—or do you pronounce it Cheltenham?—or do you pronounce it Cheltenham? It's always been a matter of dispute in my family, and, I must say, I think they're right."

As he finished, he drew a sandwich wrapped in paper from his pocket and laid his fingers on my pulse. There was a moment of tense silence.

"Full moon!" he gasped. "And the dishes not yet washed! I'm sorry to delay you, but you know how it is—or was, in the days of our grandfathers."

With that he sprang into the seat of the waiting airplane and was off.

As I responded to the dying sweat of the headlamps of his stead, I felt that I had been talking to an ordinary man.

Boy Scouts Held Annual Pow Wow

Ulster County Represented at Annual Event Held in Schenectady on May 21 to 23—Scout Executive Smith in Charge of Local Scouts.

The Annual Pow Wow of the Boy Scouts of America was held from May 21 to 23 at Schenectady, and Ulster county was represented at the annual event by Scout Executive Smith, Milton Gregory of New Paltz, Dwight Divine of Ellenville and William Nelson and Richard Bailey of Kingston.

The Pow Wow opened Friday evening with an Indian Pageant given by the Boy Scouts of Schenectady, which proved very interesting and entertaining.

Saturday the day was turned over to various athletic events such as the bow and spindle fire race, patrol camp contest, bugling contest and other events done by the Patrons of the different counties.

The rations served the Boy Scouts from the commissary tent and which were prepared by Scouts were very good the local Scouts say. The playing of the Star Spangled Banner by the Albany Council Band at the adjutant's calls roused the spirit of all the Scouts.

The Pow Wow, one of the most successful held in some time, closed Sunday with church services attended by all of the Boy Scouts

WILL MEET TO ARRANGE FOR SALE FOR THE BLIND

A letter received from Mr. Frost, president of the Albany Association of the Blind, by the women of the city interested in the coming annual sale of articles made by the blind for their benefit, states that he and his secretary are looking forward with pleasure to meeting the ladies of Kingston on Wednesday afternoon, May 26, at 4 o'clock in the Kingston City Library. At this meeting the final arrangements for the coming sale will be made.

In his letter Mr. Frost further said: "The interest and support of Kingston have always been very gratifying and it is with appreciation and confidence that we come to you again this year. We should be pleased to have you invite all interested friends to attend this meeting in order that they may be inspired by the enthusiasm to help the cause of the blind."

New Cadet Mess Hall at West Point

Corner Stone of New Building to Be Laid June 11—Erection of New Building Will Mark Completion of Three-Fourths of Military Academy's Building Program.

West Point, N. Y., May 25.—The laying of the corner stone of the new Cadet Mess Hall, Drawing Academy and Cadet Store combined, will take place on Friday morning, June 11, at 9:30 o'clock. The Hon. Hanford McNider, assistant secretary of war, will place the corner stone, Brigadier General Merch B. Stewart, superintendent of the Academy, will deliver a short address. Dedicatory prayer will be by Chaplain Clayton E. Wheat.

Work on this new building started on July 1, 1924, under the plans and drawings of the late Arnold W. Brunner. It is expected to be finished by July 1, 1928 (provided congress appropriates the money) at an estimated cost of $2,000,000. The building is of the Gothic type so prevalent at West Point and is being erected on the site of the old gymnasium between the present north and south barracks, fronting the main plain. It is being erected under the sole supervision of Colonel Edward J. Timberlake, constructing quartermaster at West Point, who is hiring all labor and purchasing all materials (except the granite which has been quarried here on the Post). This direct construction under the quartermaster will save the government almost a quarter of a million dollars (which is similar to the saving made by Colonel Timberlake in constructing the new Cadet Hospital).

The Mess Hall proper of the new building, with a seating capacity of 1,500, will rise to a height equivalent to two and a half stories and will occupy practically the entire length and width of the building. The kitchens will be in a wing in the center rear; the bakery, store rooms, and the like, in the basement. Sleeping quarters for cooks and waiters will be on the third floor.

The Cadet Store will occupy the extreme left of the building and is so constructed as to provide five stories, occupying the first three in its own wing and parts of the third and fourth floors proper.

The crowning feature is the new Drawing Academy, to occupy practically all of the top floor, including two large draughting rooms, a lecture hall to seat about five hundred, and various map and photographic rooms, offices and the like. Lieutenant Colonel Roger G. Alexander, Professor of Drawing, considers it one of the finest academies in any school in the country. It is practically three times the size of the present Drawing Academy, which fact is, indeed, the reason for the new building. Since 1917, although the Corps of Cadets has doubled, the Drawing Academy, the Mess Hall and the Cadet Store (as well as Barracks, except for one additional wing) have remained the same size, causing all kinds of inconveniences and makeshifts. This will now happily be done away with, and will be entirely eliminated when the old Mess Hall (erected in 1850 and added to on several occasions) is torn down and a new barrack building of twelve divisions erected. With the completion of the latter building, the new Mess Hall will be ideal with its three entrances so arranged that one will be for the use of cadets of each barrack area.

The erection of this new Mess Hall and Drawing Academy Building will see finished about three-fourths of the West Point building program started on as far back as 1904. To date, at a cost of about eleven millions of dollars, that program has seen the construction of the Cadet Chapel, the Riding Hall, the Gymnasium, North Barracks, a wing of South Barracks, the East Academic Building, various sets of quarters, and the Field Artillery and Cavalry Detachment Barracks and Stables. There remain on this extensive program, at an estimated cost of about two million dollars, such items as the third Cadet Barracks, various Officers quarters, additional barracks for enlisted detachments, and various quartermaster store houses. The completion of the new Barrack Building on the site of the present Cadet Mess Hall, will see the end of the building program for the New West Point, and that it will be more than ever a place of beauty, there can be little doubt.
